DEDICATION

To Professor Julian E. Jackson this Cauldron is proudly dedicated. Professor Jackson, whose service to Northeastern and the community has long been worthy of praise, will retire as of the end of this academic year. His absence will be felt by student body and colleagues alike.

A member of the Massachusetts and Federal Bar Associations, Professor Jackson graduated from Iowa's Coe College and later attended Harvard Graduate School and Northeastern Law School where he received his Master's Degree. Although he has spent fifteen years in foreign countries, he has also contributed twenty years to teaching at Northeastern. He also served as representative for the Boston Better Business Bureau and held the office of Treasurer in the Rutherford Equipment Co. in 1956. His most recent years of service with the University have been performed with only nominal compensation at his request.

A staunch supporter of Northeastern over the years, he has often been seen at its sports events and socials.

The Class of 1964 joins his colleagues in tribute to his achievement and wishes "The Judge" the best that the future can bring.

President's Message

It is a particularly great pleasure for me to extend congratulations to the members of the Class of 1964.

In a very real sense, you and I began our Freshman year at Northeastern together. You will soon be leaving your University to join the ranks of thousands of Northeastern Alumni who help to make up one of this country's most important assets — educated men and women. As you go forth into business, industry, and the professions, you may do so with confidence in yourselves and your University. You have combined an excellent education with a background of work experience that is unlike that of university graduates where academic programs are pursued in isolation from the work-a-day world. This will enable you to assume places of importance in the community much more rapidly and with much more impact than your contemporaries from other institutions of learning.

You are graduating into an age of scientific and humanistic progress. All that we learn about the world and its people only points up how much we have yet to discover. Although much emphasis is being placed on personal security, I hope you will exercise your initiative, and dare to develop new ideas, new inventions, and better ways to utilize your education. The world needs the talents you have to offer.

May God instill in each of you a passion for excellence in fulfilling this challenge. I have every confidence that as Northeastern graduates you will serve humanity well.

THE WEST DORMITORY FOR MEN
NORTHEASTERN UNIVERSITY

We sat there as the various deans, professors and administrative personnel painted a glowing picture of an advancing, forward-looking institute of learning, and we thought how many times before this same old story had been repeated to so many others.

But we were different, we were going to watch a university grow, expand, mature and move closer to its intended horizons of greatness; and we were going to be part of it.

All of us who sat there on that Fall, '59 day were going to witness the dynamism of a new university personality, the rapidity of his intensive planning and the first tangible results of a plan for change which has captured the imagination of all who can see its more intangible implications.

Many of us who entered the quadrangle on that sunny September day witnessed the procession of representatives from more than 300 colleges and universities, present in honor of the inauguration of Northeastern University's third president, Dr. Asa S. Knowles, and we were pleased to discover that the experienced administrator from the University of Toledo and the many inexperienced faces in the crowd of 1870 frosh were going to begin their Northeastern careers together.

Together we were going to be a part of the university's gradual acquisition of additional acreage, the school's expansion of its academic atmosphere and the undergraduates' enlargening of their extra-curricular lives.

Together we were going to see Northeastern's appearance change with every change of term, and Northeastern's students inject more and more campus life into this "commuter's school."

And we got down to work—together.

The years passed and we could see the evolution in ourselves and our university.

New buildings were erected, new faces appeared and activity became something more than boarding the in-bound trolley car.

With our graduation now an unbelievably accomplished fact, the class of 1964 can be most proud of having been allowed to participate in the initiation of the university's most dynamic era. For it was our class that began to grow and mature just as the instrument of its growth was itself beginning to grow and mature.

We entered, eighteen hundred and seventy strong, with a "record enrollment," 240 "husband-hunters", and a $1.5 million Graduate Center.

The first year gave us a significant glimpse of what was to come when, during the first term, a man named F. Weston Prior was named Director of Development. Later in the year the administration announced the purchase of the Boston Storage Warehouse and a NEWS editorial called for an expansion program, stating: "If such a plan were instituted, it would receive hearty support from the majority of students, faculty and alumni."

As freshmen, we naturally had not the slightest idea wherefore a "Director of Development" was of any need to such a school. What were they going to develop? Where was the need? All we could do was wait in the hope that all would be eventually made clear.

While talk of development and expansion dominated the speculative scene, more concrete evidence of what was to come was granted us with the announcement that the ROTC Department would replace the outmoded khaki uniforms with new green ones, that the tune for the "Alma Mater" was to be changed from "America the Beautiful" to something more individual and that tuition was to be increased $100 a year, effective in Fall, 1960 (yes there were to be those expensive moments).

Our first year also saw the formation of the Student Activities Department under the leadership of Professor Charles E. Kitchin while Professor Herbert Gallagher was named Director of Health, Physical Education and Athletics. The move was an evident attempt by the administration to broaden these aspects of university life and we were soon to discover how effective this action was.

Student interest was on the increase, as a new fraternity, Phi Alpha Rho, became the first to form in 35 years while a Husky Statue Booster Committee worked towards obtaining $2000, to be matched by the administration in the purchase of a statue of the school's mascot.

As frosh, we saw Joe Wells win the Mayoralty Contest and Liz Anderson voted Homecoming Queen; we saw Bob Direng win the Mr. Husky contest, Gail Starr named '64's class president and Art Chisolm named All America.

It was through activities such as these and performances by the Silver Masque of "Teahouse of the August Moon," "Tea and Sympathy," "Fanny," and "Mousetrap," that we were introduced to the concept that education is as much people, organizations and meetings as it is books, map projects, mechanical drawing classes and long reams of lecture notes.

Through those first 30 weeks (or 35, depending on your stamina) sports-minded freshmen had little to cheer about — our football team won only one game, the track team managed to place only seventh in the NEIAAA championship meet, the basketball team had an 8-13 record, the hockey team was 8-16; and the baseball team finished 9-9.

We realized that Northeastern was not known for its athletic ability and realistically resigned ourselves to the fact that we probably would limit our attendance for these events.

Yet, it was during that first hectic, tiring, oppressive, horrible, unbelievable, straining and formative year that we heard of a plan to offer a physical education major in the College of Education — another step in the right direction.

We then had our first encounter with the magical attraction which had seduced so many of us into "financing our college education while gaining practical experience in our chosen field," — Co-op. And we were no longer just plain "frosh", no longer immature high schoolers trying to play "Joe College," we were, after all, SOPHOMORES, men and women of proven responsibility, infinite knowledge and remarkable self-assurance.

September, 1960. Experienced, worldly, established and eager, we gathered to watch the 2015 "record" green, immature high school kids enter the quadrangle and to watch the further development of our university.

Through that settling second year, '64 stalwarts watched the university purchase a $2 million, 7-acre parcel of land from the United Realty Co. (The Rexall Building); the $2 million, 12-acre railroad property out in back; and the $1.75 million Roosevelt Apartments (now known as the West Dorm).

One thing was fairly clear—the purchases were by far not made in order to give us "breathing space", there was a purpose to it, a pattern.

We witnessed, also, the university's rental of 90 The Fenway, to be used as a male dormitory, and the commencement of demolition activities on the Boston Storage Warehouse, the site of which was to be used as a 400-car capacity parking lot.

The 60-61 season gave us further indication of what was soon to come as the university announced the holding of a $100,000 Alumni Drive Kick-Off Dinner designed to establish a fund which would be used for five full alumni scholarships, faculty salaries and help in acquiring facilities for the continued growth of the university. And didn't we all note that word "continued"?

Liberal Arts students heard of an expanded curriculum program, requiring a broader academic coverage in the natural sciences, the social sciences and the humanities. The new plan was to be put into effect in our class, we were to be the first to graduate under this new requirement.

Academe received further emphasis with the initiation by the university of a PhD program in Chemistry, Physics, and Electrical Engineering, to commence in the fall of 1961. Again it was fairly apparent that such a move suggested movement to bigger and better things.

In a related area, the National Science Foundation awarded Northeastern a $69,400 grant for a second nuclear research project; there was a $20,000 grant given for atomic equipment; and the Fund for the Advancement of Education contributed $15,000 to Northeastern for the purpose of supporting a psychology project.

EXAMS

REGISTRAR'S ... IAL BOARD

With all this talk about grants, drives, funds, etc., one would think that all Northea$tern ever thought about was money. Not so, there was also the very significant matter of whether or not we should purchase a live Husky dog, to serve as mascot at football games, rallies, convocations and to allow Rhode Island an opportunity to revenge the countless times we stole the "Ram". Controversy over the live dog question consumed much of the energy during the fall term with proposals, committees, petitions, and whatnot succeeding only in creating good copy for the Northeastern NEWS.

Prominent personalities appearing here during that year included Dr. Werner von Braun, famed rocket expert, who spoke as part of Scabbard and Blade's Leadership Series, and Ialongo Okumu, an acquaintance of the then Congo strongman, Patrice Lamumba, who appeared at the Model United Nations held at Northeastern with 13 colleges and universities represented. The appearances were far from the series offered by other local colleges, but they at least indicated a growing university awareness of the importance of extending itself in order to attract attention.

The broadening of Northeastern's horizons continued with Zeta Gamma Tau fraternity beginning its drive to add its name to the IFC list; the administration's approval of the appearance of National Fraternities on campus; and the announcement that the minority group (the co-eds) wanted to get into the act by forming recognized sororities.

Such expansion activity continued throughout the year with the administration's approval of the formation of religious organizations and partisan political groups on campus.

The Newman Club and Christian Science Organization soon became the school's first two religious clubs, while the politically inclined were treated to the appearance of the International Politics Club, the Young Democrats, the Young Republicans, the New Conservatives, the Old Radicals and countless other groups, each with the very commendable purpose of providing students with a sounding board for their lately-formed political opinions.

We were still sophomores when Kappa Zeta Phi Fraternity took the university at its word and petitioned to become a chapter of Tau Epsilon Phi National Fraternity.

During the latter part of the year, the film "Operation Abolition", concerned with the House Un-American Activities Committee investigations and subsequent student riots, was shown for the benefit of interested students and caused considerable comment around our hallowed tunnels.

The Mayor of Huntington Ave. campaign, increasing in size and spectacle every year was won by Brian Smith, while the Mr. Husky contest, moved into Division B in order to "pep them up", found John Cicarelli the victor.

The Army had its say too (as cadets are well aware of) with the Pershing Rifles representing New England (and Northeastern) at the Cherry Blossom Festival held in Washington. As is common with the boys in green, the "PMST" (chief honcho to the uninitiated) was reassigned and Colonel John D. Evans, Jr. moved into the Greenleaf Building.

During the year, we were treated to the Silver Masque's performance of four fine plays: "Life With Father," "Anastasia," "South Pacific," and "Good News."

With all this activity, we still did not have one important element in arousing school spirit—winning athletic teams. The football team that year had a disappointing 2-5-1 season; the basketball team finished 10-10; the hockey team, 12-14; the baseball team had a 5-12 season; the track team went 0-5; but the ski team managed to place second to MIT in the New England Intercollegiate Ski Conference competition.

Yet, there were some bright spots. Art Chisolm was again named to the All-American hockey squad's first team and was granted a three game try-out with the Boston Bruins. In addition, the Northeastern NEWS headlined "Ryan Twins, Fran and Fred, Sparkle for Freshman Five" as the frosh team gained a 14-4 record, forecasting better things in the future of that sport.

Other athletic personalities prominent during our second year included Phil

GIRLS

Johnston, named NEWS "Athlete of the Year," and (you-guessed-it) Art Chisolm granted the paper's "Most Valuable Player" award. Phil McCabe and Dave Kneeland were elected captains of the football and cross-country teams; while Phil Johnston and Ward Sears became captains of the hockey and basketball teams respectively; and Chico Parillo and Bob Mullin were to head the track and baseball teams in the year to follow.

And we had finished our second year. We were now ready to encounter that most famous of Northeastern's institutions — the practically nondescript, almost completely unexplainable Middler Year. ("What's a Middler Year?").

We had been through two hard years and had seen the university change physically, philosophically and academically. We had witnessed a considerable expansion in acreage a broadening of the scholastic base and an increase in student participation. We knew that Northeastern was on the move, that she was going someplace, seeking something, but we did not know what exactly lay ahead.

There had to be a specific direction, particular details of the plan which was evidentally being implemented.

And so we again returned to school, member of that vaporous, phantom-like section of the student body, holders of the abstract title which has confused and confounded so many of our contemporaries — Middlers. ("What's a Middler?").

The year was 1961 a.d. As we filled out those extremely burdensome registration forms (including the application for "writer's cramp" medication), we realized that we had, after two years of hard work, not quite completed one-half of our college education.

We also, during the fall of '61 witnessed the appearance of another "record" number of freshmen — 2042 '66ers, with a seven-to-one boy-to-girl ratio.

But this was a different class which entered at that time. There were seemingly more activity-minded students, more "campusites", more people willing to make the university the center of their activity. On the whole, the class had a new flavor to it which suggested a possible change in the university's admission policy.

However, the real significance of the year centered on the release of the outline, the blueprint for expansion which we "veterans" had already surmised. The class of '64 was in perfect position to see it. We had already been here long enough to have noticed the increased activity in almost every area and we were to spend three more years here, giving us the opportunity to compare what-was-intended with what really happened.

Prior to the announcement of the plan, we were treated to a full term of increased student activity in addition to greater university expansion.

That fall, the New England College of Pharmacy added 250 students to the Northeastern population (though it remained at its downtown headquarters for a year) and became the first and only Co-op College of Pharmacy in the United States.

The addition of some 57 new professors and instructors increased the faculty 10 percent, while Dr. Ronald A. Scott became the dean of the College of Engineering, succeeding Dr. William T. Alexander who had resigned in order to go into private industry.

It was during the Middler year that we saw Phil Johnston, football captain and hockey defenseman, initiate a campaign to raise over $1000 for the Korean Island of Cheju Do. It was his plan to have the entire project financed by student contributions to be gathered during the fall term of that year.

The student body proved itself worthy of such faith—by the eighth week $1051 had been collected, with money coming in from the Mayoralty contest, a band concert, personal contributions, a farcial basketball game, an all-university music festival and from Northeastern's fraternities.

The accomplishment of this goal was a particular success for Northeastern students since the Student Union had held its United Fund Fair in the quadrangle during the same period and still managed to net $536. Apparently, students were becoming more aware of the world outside and, conversely, the world outside was going to become more aware of Northeastern. After the Korean money had been collected and submitted to the Care people, it was announced that the Northeastern flag would fly over the village of Cheju Do as a symbol of the American Student's interest in the problems of others.

In administration-land, Northeastern announced the purchase of the 35-room Henderson Center for Continuing Education in Weston, Mass. The Center was intended to be used in conducting advanced courses in management and business.

Also, the National Science Foundation granted $20,400 for theoretical research concerning sub-atomic particles and, later, Dr. Carl F. Muckenhoup, dean of research administration (soon to be replaced by Martin W. Essigmann) announced that 60 recently granted science research projects had totalled $1,400,000 in outside funds. And we noted that such monies are vital contributing factors to the growth of any university.

During the first half of that year we were presented the opportunity to hear George Cabot Lodge (Republican Senatorial Candidate) speak before the Young Republicans and Frederick H. Boland, president of the 15th general assembly of the United Nations who spoke as part of Scabbard and Blade's Leadership Series.

We were again informed of an increase in costs with the announcement that tuition was to be increased another $100 a year, to go into effect in the fall of 1962.

Student activities continued to play an increasingly more important role in the university's life. The Newman Club held the first Catholic Mass on campus, as one of Northeastern's two religious organizations.

Also, the formation of a Drama Workshop, under the direction of Mr. William Lacey, was announced. In Greekland, Zeta Gamma Tau received IFC recognition, while Chi Pi Epsilon and Delta Pi Alpha became Northeastern's first two sororities. The Inter-Fraternity Council was granted the power to control freshmen rushing and Kappa Zeta Phi's petition to affiliate with Tau Epsilon Phi gained IFC approval.

The Mayoralty campaign got bigger and bigger as Al Caplan, running as "Ali Kaholic" topped a field of four contestants in one of the most colorful, original contests ever seen in the quadrangle, featuring the guest appearance of the Kingston Trio.

Homecoming activities also showed improvement, as the stands were filled with returning alumni who watched the crowning of Arlene Wissenbach as Northeastern's Homecoming Queen.

The Drama Workshop, just prior to the entrance of 1962, presented Eugene O'Neill's "Long Voyage Home," Anton Chekov's "The Bear," and "The Marriage Proposal" and Thornton Wilder's "The Happy Journey."

The Husky Key announced that the Winter Carnival was to split between Divisions A & B, with Div. A getting the snow sculpture contests and the ski day and Div. B having the election of the Winter Carnival Queen and the big dance.

The Silver Masque, during the first half of that year, presented "George Washington Slept Here" and "The Diary of Anne Frank," while music lovers were treated to the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Zimbler Sinfonietta concert held in order to benefit WGBH-TV.

Athletically, the football team had improved on its prior seasons' records by finishing 4-4—nothing to steal Rams over, but a step in the right direction. The NEWS awarded Most Improved Player certificates to Lou Carmisciano in football and Kevin Uniacke in cross-country.

But, indeed, the most exciting news during the entire first half of our Middler year was the announcement of the university's $40 million, 10-year development program.

Announced during finals week of the fall term, news of the project spread fast as we heard of the high priority projects, including: a chemistry building, a classroom building, general renovations and remodeling of existing structures, extension of the Dodge Library's stack areas, outdoor athletic fields, dormitories and multi-story parking facilities.

The pieces now started to fit together. Now we could see what lay behind the purchase of all that land, what was intended for the additional professors, the purpose behind the academic expansion and the reason for the further emphasis on extra-curricular activities.

As we learned more about the project, we discovered that, among the second priority projects, there were: a music, drama and fine arts center, a chapel, a laboratory school for the College of Education, a faculty club, ice skating and hockey rink, a swimming pool, additional indoor athletic facilities and a boathouse and boats.

Along with the increase in facilities was the intended increase in undergraduate enrollment to 9000 by 1970 with 1000 graduate Co-op students added and some 23,500 to be enrolled in the adult and part-time programs.

Intended to stress graduate study and research, the plan called for the expenditure of some $35 million on buildings and facilities and for the use of $5 million as endowment to provide a foundation for institutional independence in instruction, scholarship and research.

It had been placed before us for our inspection—the plan from which the university hoped to expand into an institution of higher learning capable of coping with the projected 50 percent increase in the college-age population by 1970.

We had been at Northeastern for two and one half years at the time of the announcement and we knew our way around well enough to recognize the seriousness of such an undertaking and to appreciate the completeness of the preparation for such a big step.

As students, we had settled into our routines, joining perhaps one or two organizations, spending hectic hours trying to quickly cram the impressive mass of material fed us into a meaningful order. We too had been preparing for things to come; we were also expanding our areas of interest; and we were also involved in a development program—one of the intellect.

It now remained, at this mid-point, to see whether the groundwork prepared and the blueprints which were to be used would succeed in carrying us and our university to the heights for which we both were so intently striving.

With the beginning of the year 1962 came the realization, for many of us, that this "college business" was a pretty serious thing, that we were well into it, in fact on our way out. We had reached the halfway point and like the climber who reaches the top of a mountain, all we had to do is get down.

For the Student Council the beginning of 1962 marked a brief period of self examination. The Council felt that there was little student confidence in the body and that its purpose was, at best, obscure. With this in mind, it circulated in the NEWS a simple three-part questionnaire asking for student opinion and suggestions as regards Council activities.

Howsoever nobly intended the questionnaire might have been and how important it was to the students, only eight members of the student body took the time to answer the questions, which was considered a poor percentage and hardly representative. Once again the cry of "Apathy" was heard throughout the land and the self-examination was shuffled off to "future business."

About this time the ROTC department reported the first theft of a firearm in the long history of the corps at Northeastern. An allegedly demilitarized .45 calibre pistol was found to be missing from the Greenleaf arms room and never was recovered. Sources close to the arms room said that the pistol was not demilitarized but fully operational at the time of the theft.

Jeanne Lombard presided as Queen of the 1962 Winter Carnival after being chosen from 24 candidates for the honor.

Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr was presented an honorary degree and was featured speaker at the University's first ROTC Convocation. Mr. Stahr praised the ROTC contingent at the final's week affair attended by high ranking state and local figures.

Boston Finance Commission head and later Attorney General Edward W. Brooke raised a few election year eyebrows when he told the Young Republican Club that the Boston Police received 65 percent of all the take from local bookie rackets.

The first major step in the University's development program was taken early in February with the Administration's announcement of plans for the construction of a new wing to the Science Hall building.

SCIENCE HALL

The $2 million addition houses the administration and laboratories of the new College of Pharmacy and was named the "Mugar Life Sciences Building."

Special dedication ceremonies were held November 7, 1963 with honorary degrees being presented to Stephen P. Mugar, member of the University Corporation and President of Star Market Company, and Dr. Norman A. Welch, President of the American Medical Association.

As the building opened, far ahead of schedule, we had for the first time tangible evidence that the University was truly moving along the paths it had set up and that the development program was something real, not just a paper policy.

Shortly after the plans for the science wing were announced two other movements toward physical and educational development began.

In mid-February President Knowles announced the formation of a Student Study Committee to look into plans to build a Student Center. The Student Center issue would later become one of the most important events of our stay here.

For many years there had been complaints from both the faculty and the student body to the effect that the ten week term system under which the university operates limits both the teaching and learning processes.

scriptions

Early in 1962 we saw two plans to revitalize the program brought before the Faculty Senate. One, calling for four 13 week terms, was rejected after consideration, while the other, urging 16 and eight week terms, received that body's approval.

But while all this was going on there was another matter that far more captured our attention than did talk of mere academic matters. Northeastern's athletic teams were moving ahead with almost unprecedented success.

For the first time in University history, we saw the basketball team receive an invitation to the NCAA College Division Tournament held in Rochester, N.Y.

The invitation was but a fitting gesture to the team which had ended the season with a 15-7 record and set a new school record of 1486 total points for the year.

The team strolled into the University of Rochester gymnasium as underdogs and strode out as the Northeastern Regional NCAA Champions after defeating two of the area's highest rated teams.

Under the able direction of Coach Dick Dukeshire, the team combined the brilliant playing of Paul Solberg, John Malvey, Fran Ryan and Ward Sears to top St. Anslem's 88 to 78 and hand a 80-69 defeat to Fairfield University.

The team then went on to the NCAA Small College finals held in Evansville, Ind., where it was handily defeated by an overpowering Southern Illinois University, 73-57. But for the first time the University's athletic prowess was being brought to national attention and we listened in justifiable pride as Coach Dukeshire prophetically announced "We'll be back."

In March we learned that for the first time the Co-op department was serving more than 1,000 employers across the country.

The effort to have a Student Center constructed gathered steam when the administration announced that one could possibly be built immediately if the students wanted to pay for it.

While many skeptics scratched their collective heads and said that a dangerous precedent was being set, the majority of the student body favored the idea. Petitions were circulated in both divisions calling for a $30 a year assessment for each student beginning with the class of 1966 effective September 1964.

On June 8, 1962 the petition drive met its goal and the student assessment program was approved by the administration. The University now had our go-ahead to borrow money from the government for the immediate construction of the center.

Few issues have generated more heat and enthusiasm than did the Student Center. The Div. A NEWS gave the issue its strongest support while its Div. B counterpart questioned the advisability of our providing the Development Program with a free building. But it was generally agreed that we must have a Center, something reserved for our exclusive use with no classrooms or administrative facilities.

Because of the estimated $2 million cost, the administration admitted that the building was "not high" on the priority list but the agreement where the students will pay for the building had changed the entire picture.

Administration officials worked with considerable enthusiasm in drawing up plans to student specifications and when construction begins in late 1964 we feel that the University will be better able to compete with other colleges in the area by offering its so-called "Commuting" students a permanent base of student activities and study operations.

We were very much saddened and a little irked by the enforced retirement of a group of long time professors at the end of the 1962 Scholastic year.

Under a University ruling calling for the automatic resignation of members of the faculty and staff upon their 70th birthday, four professors were forced to leave the staff. A fifth retired voluntarily.

In total, the five men had more than 195 years of service to the University and their loss was deeply felt.

The professors were Dean Emil A. Gramstroff, Prof. Frederick W. Holmes, Dean Harold W. Melvin, Prof. John C. Morgan and Prof. Joseph Spear.

The University expressed its deepest gratitude to the men for their long dedicated service and a special testimonial edition to the NEWS was published in their honor.

The first graduate Co-op course in Mathematics in the country was initiated here in September, 1962 leading to Master of Science degree.

On April 27, 1962 the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business accredited Northeastern's College of Business Administration. The accreditation was celebrated in B.A. circles throughout the University.

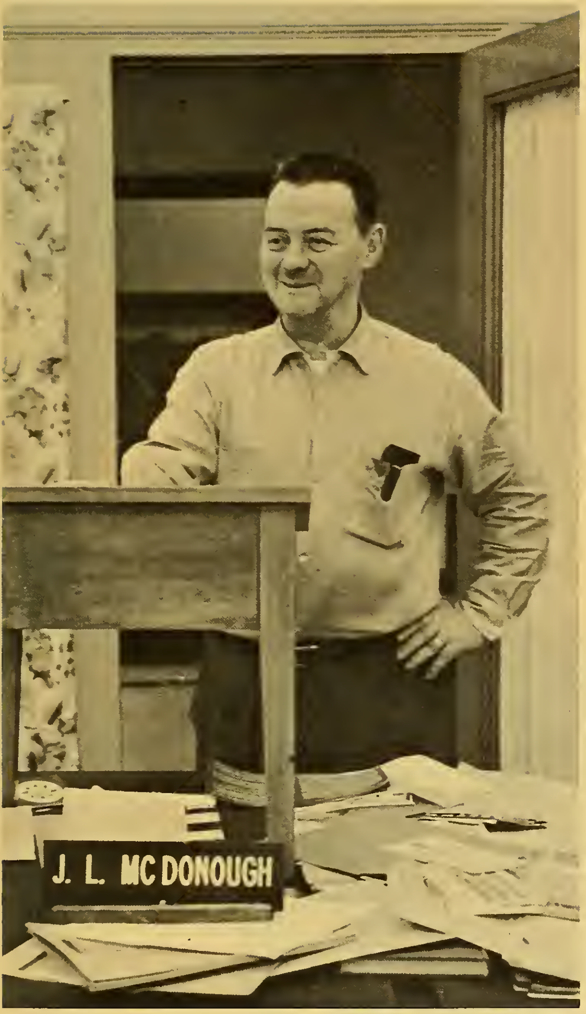
While it is true that most B.A. students assumed that their college was accredited in the first place, the significance of the AACSB decision was quickly appreciated. Northeastern's college and hence graduates were now on the same level, in theory as well as in practice, with the more than 100 accredited schools across the country.

We saw, or rather listened, as three professors began a series of national radio broadcasts under the auspices of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters.

Prof. J. Rosson Overcash was chosen to air 13 fifteen minute talks on "Footnotes to Science," Prof. Louis E. Roberts to deliver 13 fifteen minute "Portraits of America," and Dr. Nathan W. Riser spoke on the "Flow of Life" in 14 half-hour talks.

A little article, slipped into the NEWS at the last minute to fill a hole, for some reason caused such an uproar that staffers feared to leave the office without an armed guard. All the article said, and said with guileless innocence, was that there are hardly any attractive females at Northeastern.

Our Coeds took umbrage, whatever that is, at the statement and for quite a while it appeared that the Freedom of the Press or more exactly, Freedom of Pressmen would be sorely infringed upon. Strange.



By the summer of 1962 the plan to overhaul our term setup had been studied and approved by the Faculty Senate. The proposed plan, with 16 and eight week terms, was forwarded to Dr. Knowles and the Board of Trustees for further study.

The proposed plan stirred violent arguments. While it was almost unanimously agreed that we must do something about the present system, there was strong faculty and administration objection to the proposed plan.

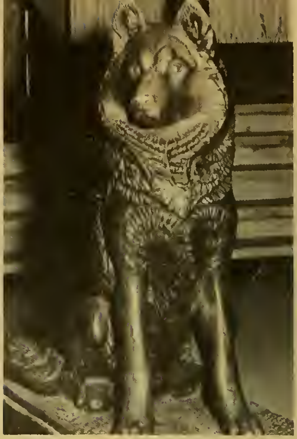
It was argued that the new plan would be far too expensive, transition expenses would be monumental, the Co-op Department could not operate under it, tuition would inevitably have to be raised, that students could not afford the 16 week term, that two terms, no matter how much longer one might be, would be little better than three short ones.

Those in favor pointed out that the ten week system is impractical and limits the instructor as well as the student, transition costs would be high no matter what system is adopted, that the longer term allows for courses in depth rather than a shallow covering of facts, that we would have more time for better term papers, that science courses could offer a continuity of study and research impossible under the present program.

While the controversy was carried out almost solely by administrators and faculty, we generally ignored the whole problem. The plan, too many of us felt, was complicated and its acceptance was purely an administrative decision.

The NEWS ran full page explanations of the proposed calendar change but we failed to realize, for the most part, that the proposed plan, like the ones that had preceded it and those that will eventually follow, affects the most basic element of our undergraduate training—the calendar under which we study and the courses that can be practically scheduled into it.

Whether the proposed change was for the best, the worst or whatever, it was felt that general student apathy played an important part in Dr. Knowles' September 25, 1963 rejection of the plan.



September of 1962 saw the erection of the King Husky Statue in the Ell Center lobby. While the statue attracted more wisecracks than expressions of school feeling, we were once again reminded of the continuing effort, spurred more often than not by members of our class, to regenerate more school spirit.

Of course it had been argued that the University should have a live Husky as a mascot but various considerations produced the statue.

Original plans called for the placing of the statue in the quadrangle but the sculptor, Angelo Cascieri, argued that the impressive size and shape of the surrounding buildings would dwarf the poor statue there. It was finally decided to put it in the Ell lobby.

After the $4,000 item was produced many students noted that they could think of better places for what they fondly referred to as "The Gargoyle."

Kappa Theta Xi was the first sorority to be accepted by the newly established Inter-Sorority Council in June. The original three members, Chi Pi Epsilon, Delta Pi Alpha and Theta Sigma Tau, as well as KTX and under the direction of advisor Dean Dorothy G. Dissell formed the ISC into an active and important asset to the University Community.

All of a sudden we were Juniors. With no little relief we threw off the obscure title of Middler (What's a Middler?) and moved a little closer towards that strange thing called graduation.

We saw New England's first ROTC Counter Guerrilla Corps formed here with 77 students volunteering. Designed to emphasize physical fitness and counter-insurgence type of fighting, the CGC soon stomped around the campus replete with all the glory of its high boots, bloused trousers and black berets.

In September we sat back, with kind of an amused sophisticated smile on our faces, as a (ho-hum) record 2237 new freshmen entered the campus. It was refreshing to some that the new crowd included 385 Co-eds.

In mid-October we were once again proud as Northeastern gained more national prominence. This time it was educationally as a participant on the General Electric College Bowl, a nationally televised quiz program. Four of our top students, Paul Tenney, Ann Gordon, Samuel Ganczaruk and H. Randell Webb were flown to New York where they competed with the team from the University of Detroit.

As more than 300 of us watched from the audience and another 1,100 viewed a special closed circuit television hookup in Alumni Auditorium, NU's quartet represented us far more effectively than the 285 to 100 score in favor of Detroit would indicate.

Bill "Saki" Lynch was elected Mayor of Huntington Avenue after a spirited campaign which saw the six contestants bringing out a record number of voters.

The Homecoming Committee displayed its usual good taste in arranging the November ceremonies and with wisdom known only to the inspired, made the difficult decision of choosing Barbara Carlson from a field of five local lovelies.

The varsity football team gave us a preview of coming attractions when it ended its 1962 season with a 6-2 record, one of the best in recent years.

In 1947, under the direction of Dean Harold W. Melvin, a group of students formed the Husky Hi-liters to serve as sort of an oral bulletin board of school activities.

Back in those old days the Hi-liters broadcasted into the commons for 15 minutes each day but as the years rolled on, expanded until by mid-1962 it was on the commons airwaves four or five hours each day with regularly scheduled programs and interviews.

On December 13, the group took, with certain misgivings, a giant step towards the eventual goal of a professional radio system. On that date, Station Manager Ron Frizzel officially opened WNEU to the praise of the NEWS, Student Council, administration and student body.

WNEU began broadcasting 16 hours a day, over a special telephone transmission circuit, to the school dorms where it could be received on the regular AM radio dial. The new station was hailed as an important addition to university activities and its potential as a cultural aid was regarded a scholastic and intellectual boon.

Before many months had passed, however, WNEU became the object of heavy criticism from certain of its broadcasters and was lashed editorially by the NEWS which had so warmly praised its opening.

The problem was one of programming. The NEWS and others complained that the station was featuring some 12 hours a day of Rock and Roll music and that aesthetically the station was a failure. Station officials countered with the argument that the station audience, freshman at the West Dorm for the most part, wanted to hear this type of "music" and that the station was doing a good job in filling audience demand.

Polls were produced which showed that the Freshmen, some six months out of high school, indeed wanted Rock and Roll and all they could get as well. The controversy eventually led to the reorganization of the station and the retirement of several broadcasters.

But after the heat of the moment had passed, the station began to tighten up on its broadcasting offering more diversified programming and featuring more mature music. A university ruling allowing the station to sell advertising time, permitted the station to make remarkable physical progress at no cost to the administration and hence student body.

Late in 1963, WNEU acquired more broadcasting facilities and affiliated with a national radio hookup for better news coverage.

During the year 1962 we attended four fine plays produced by the Silver Masque including "George Washington Slept Here," "Once upon a Mattress," "The Fantasticks" and "The Skin of Our Teeth."

The closing of 1962 will always be a time of warm memories to the brothers of GPK who were sent rushing out into the early morning cold by a fire which raced through their Brookline house. Other fraternities responded to the call and housed the displaced brothers until new facilities could be arranged.

We would watch the passing of the year 1963, first as Juniors later as Seniors, as one of developments, increased student activities and a variety of personal and educational accomplishments.

Early in the year it was announced that the University was doing away with the system of allowing Freshman to enter in November. It was argued that there was little call for the November system and that it proved to be more expensive than helpful to the student. But the 240 members of our class who entered as November Freshmen would look back on the system as one of positive and financial benefits.

Working under a $60,000 grant from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Northeastern initiated a doctoral program in Space Science with four candidates receiving full tuition and expenses.

Student residences and dormitories played a big role in the news of 1963.

Early in the year the University leased a 100-unit building on St. Stephen's Street for the exclusive use of male upperclassmen on an apartment basis rather than as a dormitory. The new acquisition marked the University's recognition of the growing movement throughout state and local colleges that many upperclass students are indeed mature enough to maintain a relatively low-cost apartment rather than have to live in the more strictly supervised dorms.

Co-ed upperclassmen got an unexpected break when the administration passed a ruling allowing senior co-eds the right to live in an apartment rather than a dorm.

Existing regulations had forbade co-eds from living in apartments before reaching the age of 22 years. It was argued, apparently effectively, that few co-eds are that old even at graduation and that the regulation forced the student to pay high dorm rates.

Plans for the construction of the Dr. Frank Palmer Speare Women's Dormitory were announced in 1963. Ground for the $2.6 million dorm was broken in April at the site of the late Boston Opera House which was torn down and the land used for a parking lot.

While few of us noted, one of the quiet departments of the University, the Biology Department, was making some really significant gains and expansion. Under the direction of Dr. Nathan W. Riser, the department doubled its teaching staff in 1962 and in 1963 we were told of a new $150,000 expansion program.

Spurred by the influx of new students in the dental and nursing schools, new laboratories were constructed at the Life Science building and a graduate program instituted. Included in the project was the construction of physiology, microbiology, genetics, microscope techniques and invertebrate zoology laboratories as well as an aquarium room.

Coach Dick Dukeshire's statement that "we'll be back" at the conclusion of Northeastern's activities in the 1962 NCAA basketball tourney proved to be accurate with the slight variation that the NCAA came here.

The Husky Hoopmen finished the regular season with a 15-0 record, which is considered pretty good in most circles, and went on to defeat Assumption 74-60 and Springfield 47-45.

Dukeshire et al then submitted a return performance at Evansville, Ind., where the top ranked small college in the country, Wittenburg, had all it could do to hand us a 48-47 defeat.

In 1961 the student body collected more than $1,000 to aid a small Korean village and in 1963 donated more than $850 to aid in the construction of a school in Guatemala. Dances, talks—featuring, among others, noted heart specialist Dr. Paul Dudley White—and a tag sale highlighted the successful nine-week drive.

Northeastern's architectural design came under some sharp criticism in March when a questionnaire circulated by Robert Minichiello asking student opinion on the grey and white, vertical design found that the student population was generally opposed to the style.

Many of us called it "drab", "unimaginative" "too business like" and it was said that if a University can't experiment in architectural design, who can be expected to?

Dr. Knowles countered with praise from various architectural and business groups and stated that any future development will incorporate the style.

More than 110 entries marked the first major art exhibit in university history. Held in Cabot Gymnasium, the exhibit was sponsored by the New England Contemporary Artists Inc. and featured works from every level of the aesthetic scale. While many of us wondered over some of the more abstract paintings, it was generally agreed that Northeastern was finally moving ahead in the cultural field.

One short lived controversy that had students talking and was picked up by other college newspapers was the use of intercoms in the West Dorm. The NEWS ran a story in April citing student complaints that the intercoms were being used to listen in on student conversations in their rooms.

The intercom system had been set up to inform students of visitors or telephone calls and when used thusly was appreciated by the dorm residents. The students complained however that one could eavesdrop on conversations and goings-on in the rooms yet remain undetected. The administration called the complaints ridiculous and promised to have a two-way, "private" system set up.

As students we began to carry a little more weight in administrative affairs when it was announced that certain students would be allowed to sit in as members of two heretofore all-faculty committees. Carl Stone and Steven Leber were chosen to participate on the Committee on Discipline and Regulations while Douglas Hull and Robert Bascomb sat in as members of the Committee on Student Activities.

Div. A was represented on the two committees by Al Caplan, Dick Donohue, Dave Smith and Bill Lynch.

Bob Dering automatically became the 1963 Mr. Husky when no other candidates registered to compete against him.

While this, of course, says nothing against Dering's qualifications, it did cause a few Div. A people wondering whether Div. B is the right place for the Mr. Husky contest.

We heard with admiration, our class officers outline plans for our Senior Week which included the trip to New York World's Fair. The Senior Week activities were a tribute to the Class Officers and members of the planning committees.

Late in the Spring of 1963 the University's first Jounralism Society was organized in an effort to promote and further interest in that field.

With the retirement from the field of the Class of 1963 we found ourselves in the almost unbelievable position of being Seniors. Seniors. What has been at best the vaguest of abstract ideas was now a frightenly concrete reality. We were the big bugs on campus, the leaders...what a feeling. Only one short year left...unless, of course, we flunked out in the meantime.

Wheeling our oversized heads through the corridors, we watched another record crowd of Freshmen enter the University colony. The Class of 1968 numbered

2560 including more than 400 co-eds. (Boy, did we look that young when we were Freshmen?) (Yup!)

It was becoming more and more apparent that the University of Rhode Island might do well to hire our Counter Guerrilla Corps or at least a few Pinkerton agents as we made our annual "Ramnap" in September. It is rumored that the poor ram now knows more NU students than Rhode Islanders.

The University received a sizeable land donation from the estate of Henry E. Warren including the late university supporter's 40 acre home and land in Ashland and an adjoining 25 acre plot. The University plans to have special buildings constructed on the land and hopes to utilize the natural aspects of the property in connection with its growing physical education and recreation program.

Eugene Murray, who campaigned as "Jefferson Savus" won the 1963-64 Mayorality contest while Margaret Camelio survived a ballot recount to become Queen of the Homecoming ceremonies.

A report issued by the Co-operative Work Department tried to tell us that we earned a total of $9.2 million a year as Co-op students, but that's a little hard to believe.

Another sports (?) organization was formed in late 1963 and it wasn't very long before we were watching, with no little amazement, the antics of the Judo Club. Proficiency in this oriental art is measured by the color of one's belt, ranging from white through brown to black. After watching the club throw itself around, most of us decided to settle for the yellow belt.

Without doubt few of us will forget, no matter what roads we may take, the events and emotions surrounding the assassination of President John F. Kennedy on November 22, 1963.

Millions of words have been written, and will be written, attempting to report and analyze the nation's reaction to one individual's decision to alter the choice of the American electorate. For no matter what our personal or political views might be, it was with a feeling of intense helplessness and shock that we watched as one man with incredible if not insane audacity saw fit to murder, if nothing else, the President of the United States or, if nothing more, a fellow human being.

And yet the curious thought occurs that Mr. Kennedy's death might stand as some oblique tribute to the American way of life where the Presidents of the United States constantly, confidently and fearlessly place themselves in the position to be assassinated with little but the spirit of Democracy to protect them.

In this area we felt the loss of Mr. Kennedy particularly deeply as he was from Massachusetts, from Boston. He possessed that color, that flair, that personal charm which alone might not have made him a great President but made us proud to consider him one of our own.

On Co-op, we watched and listened with amazement as the news broke. Office work stopped, small talk seemed so much smaller. Many companies dismissed their employees that they might better learn of the event and express their unashamed reaction in the privacy of their own homes.

In school things seemed to happen quicker. Many of us did not hear the news until we were in class. Many instructors cancelled their classes so that students could find out more information, the others tried vainly to capture the attention of a student population which knew history was being made outside the insignificant confines of the classroom.

WNEU rose above its critics and suspended all programs that it might present full coverage of the events, bizarre and heroic, that followed the President's death. The University cancelled all classes on the day of Mr. Kennedy's funeral.

No, we will not forget. As the years pass and emotions are slowed and the youngest generations learn of the events from the cold precision of history, we will remember.

A former missile site in Burlington was donated to the University early in 1963 and soon became a part of Northeastern's growing suburban campus. Original plans called for the use of the 15-acre area by upperclass students, particularly those in the science and engineering fields. It was thus felt that the unit would be a welcome complement to the nearby electronics industries on Rte. 128.

The plans were changed, however, as the University was faced with a prospective crowd of more than 3,000 freshman entering in 1964.

The new plans call for 350 of the Freshmen attending regular classes in Burlington and returning to the central campus for their upperclass years.

Critics of the plan-change argued that the University might be over-conscious of the revenue of a large Freshman class would produce and should limit the size of the class and use the facilities for better education for the upperclass students.

Probably the biggest sports event in University history took place when Northeastern's undefeated, untied football team received an invitation to play in the Eastern Bowl at Allentown, Pa.

The team, which had brought so much life and color back to the athletic program, had scored 237 points during the season, setting a record.

It would be unfair to say that the Husky success trail was highlighted by the brilliance of any one particular player but rather, in the words of team captain Joe Davis, "There are seven men in a line and for it to function as a unit, each must be doing his job well. The same is true of the backfield."

And function as a unit the team did. Combining an overpowering offense and a penetrating defense, the team well earned the Bowl invitation.

At Allentown the team was held to but six points by the University of East Carolina who rode over the Husky defense for 27 of their own.

But the defeat in the Eastern Bowl was far less significant than the quality and spirit the team had shown us through the regular season and in the game. It was with no little pride that we watched as Max St. Victor tied an NCAA record with his 48 yard field goal, as Bob Cappadona was presented the annual Swede Nelson Sportsmanship Award, as Joe Zabilski was named the Coach of the Year by the Boston Football Writers Association.

During 1963 The Silver Masque presented "Picnic", "Finian's Rainbow", "The Gazebo" and "Dark of the Moon" to the delight of students, alumni and friends.

The formal acceptance of Theta Rho Epsilon into the Fraternity complex late in 1963 marked that organization's final victory in its three-year struggle to be recognized. The new group had been vetoed by one division or the other several times on the grounds that it was disorganized and administratively weak. But with aid of some of the other Greek organizations the Brighton-based fraternity was able to convince the powers that be that it was finally ready to join on an equal basis, the eleven existing fraternities.

Oscar Lindner was elected to the Mr. Huskyship from a field of two candidates. Bill Aucoin finished second. While the amount of candidates is nothing to stir the heart, we had the opportunity of watching the election conducted under a new set of rules, rules that expect the candidates to be civil, have a good Q.P.A. and emphasize school spirit.

Linda Levy Nathanson was named the "University's Woman of the Year" late in December. President of Theta Sigma Tau, Linda is a Dean's List student majoring in Electrical Engineering, which can be compared to cooking and sewing but not with much confidence.

The Class of '66, in co-operation with the Ford Foundation, sponsored a folk-jazz concert starring Nina Simone and Herbie Manne.

While the city of Boston was trying to figure out a solution to the problems of discrimination in its schools, announcement was made that the University had been granted $150,000 from the Ford Foundation to create scholarships for needy yet deserving Negro students.

But looking back we will remember our Senior year as the Year of the Athletes. We had three undefeated teams, two tourney bids and nearly a third.

While the football team's season created quite a stir on campus, the track and cross-country teams had just as successful a year but remained pretty much out of the spotlight.

Jerry Tatton's Cross-Country stars overcame a three year jinx, that saw them losing only the last match of each season and by only one point, to complete its first undefeated season in years.

The track team also went undefeated for the first time in years. Tatton's tracksters set four meet and two Cage records as they capped their season with a healthy victory over the University of Maine.

The hockey team ended its season with an impressive 14-10 record, one of its best since the old Art Chisolm days. Members of the team, as well as at least one Boston newspaper, figured that the Bellmen would receive an invitation to the E.C.A.C. post-season tourney. It came as a disappointing surprise to the team which had won four of its last five games, including topping third rated Rensselaer Polytechnical Institute, when it was not invited to the tourney.

But if football marked the beginning of the year it was basketball again that proved of interest at the end.

The February 14, 1964 edition of the NEWS front-paged a picture of a not too slim man leaping high into the air in obvious joy. The man was Coach Dick Dukeshire, the event was his team's defeat of Boston College by two points. The game marked the first time since Dukeshire took over that the team had beaten the Eagles and only the second time in a dozen years that we have been able to win. This year's victory was the more impressive as B.C.'s fine team was coached by one Bob Cousy, who is not new at the game.

The Huskies ended the regular season with 16 wins and seven losses. Against College Division competition, the team won 14 while losing two.

The team received its third annual invitation to participate at the N.C.A.A. tourney held at Assumption (16-1) College in Worcester.

Heavily favored to lose, the Huskies in very poor taste and lack of consideration for the press and their hosts defeated Assumption 79-68.

N.Y.'s Adelphi' proved a little too strong for the Dukemen as Northeastern lost the second post season tourney contest 68-66.

Another proposed calendar change was under study during our senior year and events during late February and March would lead one to think that maybe this plan will meet with more success than those that preceded it.

The plan is not new, it had been considered before. It calls for four 13 week terms a year. But this plan has not only received Faculty Senate approval but overwhelming support from the faculty itself.

In a special secret ballot the faculty voted 226-28 in favor of the plan.

While the plan is criticized because it may present problems in attracting instructors to teach summer programs, the faculty support will carry great weight as Dr. Knowles and the Trustees consider final action.

A couple of impressive grants highlighted industry's and government's growing recognition of the talented faculty and staff at Northeastern.

Dr. Karl Weiss, associate professor of chemistry was awarded a $26,608 grant for laser research into photochemistry by the Federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare and Dr. H. Ti Tien, also an associate professor of chemistry, was granted $5,000 by the Research Corporation of New York to continue his pioneer work into the basic structure of cell membranes.

When we were Freshmen, many of us were duped by upperclassmen and other scoundrels into buying tickets to the "Swimming Pool". If any of us have saved these tickets they may be of some value as the University announces that a pool will be part of the facilities offered in the new Bouve-Boston School of Physical Education and Physical Therapy.

The Bouve School, nationally known for its work in physical therapy decided to join our campus because it felt that our system is "well suited for students preparing to enter careers in physical education and physical therapy."

Included in the facilities the Bouve-Boston School will bring, at its own cost, are a swimming pool, a girl's gym, indoor and outdoor playing fields and some 200 more co-eds.

The last three plays produced by The Silver Masque that we were able to watch as undergraduates were "Pursuit of Happiness," "Take Me Along" and "View from the Bridge."

Finally we watched as the Faculty Cultural Committee submitted a report calling for at least four major cultural events on campus each year.

Northeastern's culture or, according to the NEWS, lack of it, would be materially aided by programs such as an art exhibit accompanied by an artists in residence, a ballet performance, a symposium on current issues, a theater performer or performance or a lecture or reading by a literary artist, said Committee Chairman Prof. Eugene J. Blackman.

Like the latest proposed term change, the cultural program would have little affect on us as individuals because we will probably have graduated before it could go into effect but the programs deserve our support because they give a much needed hand in making Northeastern a better place to have graduated from.

Obvious space and deadline limitations have restricted what the Cauldron would like to have presented in this brief history. For each of the several hundred events noted, a dozen has had to be omitted.

But the purpose of the history has not been to praise individual efforts so much as to point what has been considered the trend of the Class of '64.

We have watched the development program expand, student activities and fraternities formed, athletic teams prosper, the University gain national recognition.

We have watched controversies rise and fall, the student population increase, new scholastic programs instituted, more honors and recognition for the faculty and student body.

CARL STEPHENS ELL

But more distinctly we have watched the Class of 1964 revamp administrative thinking on the importance of student activities, of the student body. We entered the University as freshmen in 1959 and with our class came the most significant increase in school spirit and school progress that the University has ever witnessed. This is not simply blowing our own horns, but a fact that has been noted and commented upon by officials on all levels of the college.

Unfortunately, and unfairly, it has been impossible to show the quiet, methodical progress made by groups and individuals that has so typified our class' efforts. It has been impossible to note the significant development of the various professional societies, the clubs, the literary efforts that have taken place in the last five years. But while these progressions are understandably hard to pinpoint, they have all played an important part in the trend of progress, change and development that the Class of '64 has been involved in.

This history has tried to graphically demonstrate how the trend has operated but leaves the question as to why there has been such a trend unanswered.

There have been several theories put forward attempting to explain the increased student participation in school affairs, the increase in student activities and in school spirit.

It has been argued that the change may well be a reaction to the pressures of Northeastern's tight schedules and co-op assignments. It is felt that the surge of individual activity is an expression of the drives which the University initiates yet provides no outlet for.

Another opinion, one which we would like to believe to be true, is that today's student is more mature, better educated and can devote more of his mental time to extra-curricula activities. As has also been coldly pointed out, the student population is today drawn more from the middle classes than before and has brought with it more middle class attitudes on what a college student should be like.

Others maintain that the student body has been attempting to keep in step with the physical and administrative progress which followed Dr. Knowles assumption of the presidency. As the University has developed from the simple commuter college to an educational facility of some depth, from a "factory" to a place of higher learning, so has the student changed his degree of at least mental participation.

It has been further argued that the development of school spirit and the blossoming of the student body in general is an expression of an effort to maintain some degree of individuality in the face of a fast growing and coldly administrative university.

There can be, however, no cut and dry explanation of why thousands of students should develop an almost unprecedented trend of change and progress. There have probably been as many reasons for a student's activity as there are students.

To say that our five years at the University has been a time of continuous happiness and fun would, of course, be ridiculous. We have all been through the rigors of co-op, had to deal with the strange race of people called Co-op Coordinators, had to worry about exams, finances, social considerations.

PROCTOR

But the human animal being constructed in the curious manner in which it is, it is safe to say that as we look back on our days at Northeastern we will more often and more clearly remember the good times than the bad ones.

And who can say that this is not the way that it should be? Upon graduation we are entering a life of work, a more settled existence than we have been used to. Seldom will we have the opportunities to let off the steam, to have this sort of fun. The worries and pressures will always be there.

So as we look back from the awesome peaks of maturity and social staidness, let us be proud that we not only have had our good times but have made a solid contribution to our alma mater and have set quite an example for those to follow.

HUSKY KEY SOCIETY

This is the organization that contributes so much to our school. We saw the Key at work in the Freshman Show, where we were first introduced to the peculiarities of our school. Then we were off to the voting booth to elect our own Mayor—the Mayor of Huntington Avenue. Meanwhile during Division A the Key sponsored numerous rallies and several mixes.

The pace did not slacken, for Division B ably took up the pace and sponsored the election for the position of Husky Dog. Also again supporting our sports representatives by holding rallies and in general doing their best to achieve and maintain a body of enthusiasm for our school.

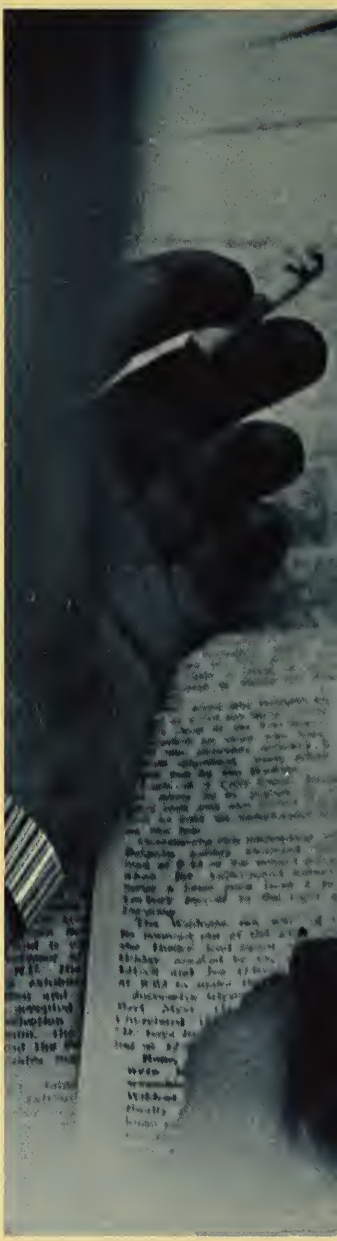
The Cauldron, that which boils with so much effort—thankless effort—, has now the opportunity to thank all those who contributed so much to produce this yearbook. Thank you.

We hope that those who may be so critical to take into account that we, as they are, are far from perfect. We were (in retrospect) glad to have participated in reproducing a history of some of our happier and sadder moments.

We feel that the Cauldron will show, for all those interested, that Northeastern was to us more than just a factory. A school with admittedly many defects, but with a certain attitude towards living, that we were proud to have been a part of.

Again a sincere thanks for those many stairs climbed, that copy painfully grasped from the air, and that class which shouldn't have been cut, but was.



...a thousand words

the NEWS

As the editors of the Northeastern NEWS walk off into the sunset, they can look back on another successful year and 21 issues of the NEWS. They can also look back to 21 weeks of cutting classes, late nights, Friday morning fights, Friday noon fights and Friday night fights.

It is a dedicated and ill staff which is responsible for the weekly deadlines—sometimes not kept. It is a staff of writers, rewriters, readers, rereaders, ad men (and women) and a host of others.

To the graduating seniors, working on the NEWS has meant much. Many things were learned and many things found including husbands and lovers. Much was gained in the way of gray hairs, ulcers and whatnot.

The entire NEWS staff would like to thank all the people—especially the students—whose cooperation has made possible and will always make possible the making of the NEWS.

Mayonase just don go wid liverworst...

The conspirators huddle...

Oh well...what the hell...

THE ACADEMY

The ACADEMY, Scholastic Honor Society of the College of Liberal Arts, was founded in 1937 and "was set squarely in the tradition of our Western European cultural inheritance." Guided by the principles of disinterested pursuit of knowledge, free discussion, and the association of educated persons, the ACADEMY admits those Liberal Arts Seniors who are in the upper fifteen percent of their class and have a quality point average of 3.0, and those Juniors who are in the upper ten percent of their class and have a 3.2 quality point average.

Both Division A and Division B have separate slates of officers, and initiations are held twice yearly. The ACADEMY presents an annual award of $100 to the Sophomore in the College of Liberal Arts, who during the previous year as a Freshman, made the highest scholastic record.

The name is new, but the ideals and traditions of this brotherhood are firmly established. On May 11, 1963 Sigma Phi Alpha, a local fraternity at Northeastern for 39 years, became the Delta Pentaton Chapter of Phi Sigma Kappa Fraternity, its 100th chapter.

The learning process of all the old and well established Phi Sig rituals and traditions have been encompassed into the brotherhood.

The Alumni Banquet and Alumni Reunion Days have brought many brothers back to visit and see our progress.

Phi Sig culminated five years participation in softball, basketball, tennis and bowling in inter-frat competition by winning the All Sports Trophy.

ZΓT

Zeta Gamma Tau fraternity can today be numbered among the most active student organizations at Northeastern University. This statement is true largely because of the hard work put into this group by its members. The statement is somewhat remarkable however, since ZGT is officially only one and one-half years old. In September of 1961 ZGT was formally recognized by the Interfraternity Council as Northeastern's eleventh fraternity.

The secret of the fledgling group's quickly achieved prominence was its highly organized and efficient state even before its recognition. ZGT's sixteen founding brothers had done an excellent job functioning as an unrecognized on-campus group.

September of 1959 saw the beginning of their quest for University recognition. At that time three freshmen and one sophomore met in a Boston apartment to explore the possibility of founding a new fraternity at Northeastern. George Lynch, 64 BA; John Lynch, 64 ENG; Michele Porcaro; and Albert Mangone 64 ED; decided to devote their efforts to this uncertain venture in the hope that they could make a positive and lasting contribution to student life at Northeastern.

During the next two months the group grew slowly with the acquisition of other interested students, the formulation of initial goals, and the election of its first officers. George Lynch was elected the first president of the group with Richard Donahue, 64 BA, as vice-president, John Madden 64 BA as treasurer, and Albert Mangone 64 ED as secretary. From this time until its recognition the sixteen member group worked towards that goal at a steady but sometimes rather frustrating rate of speed.

The group was disappointed but not deterred. Finally on May 26, 1961, the more friendly Division B I.F.C. recognized ZGT as a fraternity after "more than twenty weeks of investigation and deliberation." ZGT now needed only the sanction of the Division A I.F.C. for the acquisition of a charter.

Backed by the decision of the Division B I.F.C., ZGT finally received Division A's recognition on September 26, 1961. Those few brothers who had been with the new fraternity since their freshman year in September of 1959, and had seen their goal achieved, were now middlers. And are now Seniors.

The first big social event of the year for Alpha Kappa Sigma fraternity was Homecoming Weekend...a great time was had by all.

At the annual Christmas party gifts were distributed by AKE's Santa and after our New Year's party we are sure everyone was filled with the "spirits" of the holidays.

The season was highlighted by the Quint-Frat Formal, held this year at the Blue Hills Country Club.

1963-64 marked the beginning of the DePaul-Benoit Scholarship fund established to perpetuate the memory of two of our departed brothers. The first will be presented this coming September term.

The burning of our mortgage enabled us to start building for the future. We hope to be able to keep pace with the growth of the University.

THETA RHO EPSILON

January 29, 1964 Theta Rho Epsilon received its charter and became the twelfth fraternity on campus. Will the school ever be the same again?

We have many fond memories; a few lost weekends we'd like to forget, our dainty 85-pound paddle, the residential of Sutherland Road that gravitated around No. 95 on weekends, our red-hot bowling team and our never forgotten scoreless tie in the Annual Toilet-Bowl Game.

The wedding bells rang loud and clear for many a brother despite reassurance that cowardice was the better part of valor.

Did we start a new tradition when our pledges presented a fire hydrant to Mr. Husky?

Remember those little trips courtesy of the Pledge Class; Dick Ward to Suburbia and Len Freeman to U. Mass. and Joe and Tom's trip to the Holy Land via Miami.

For Theta Rho Epsilon 1964 was a great year and the herald of many more to come. Our hearts forever bound to thee, forever faithful T.R.E.

Many good times and a lot of hard work tightened the ties that bind us and made last year a fruitful one for Phi Beta Alpha. A recent alumnus, John Palmucci, assumed the advisory chores as the regular advisor, Professor Fullington, received a Sabbatical leave. The ranks were strengthened to the tune of 45 active Brothers who gathered each Monday night in the spirit of good cheer to watch Choo-Choo Dugan and his cohorts on the exec board clear the night's agenda ... Three hell weekends spiced the senior's last year and after they were over, Langlan believed firmly in an invisible shield and Keefe was doved "the skier" ... Dick Saicolo was awarded the Alumni Scholarship ... "Big Ben" Ristino led us in the Mayoralty Contest and our "Berlin Wall" won third place in the homecoming float parade. We had the "campus pac caper", Krastin "the silent one", Hupprich the "banker" and a few visits from McDonough ... Weekly parties, church bells for some members, a clambake, a senior banquet, a gala New Year's party and a 2-0 defeat in the hangover bowl made it another banner year for the Brotherhood.

NU EPSILON ZETA

A tradition, as well as a brotherhood, has bound the brothers of Nu Epsilon Zeta Fraternity together since its founding in 1921.

We, as the present representatives of Nu Epsilon Zeta Fraternity, have kept the spirit of this tradition alive throughout 1963, our biggest contribution being a first place in the Homecoming Float contest. Other memorable events were many, among them being first places in golf and bowling and a second place in the overall I.F.C. Sports Award.

Being a social fraternity, NEZ has strived for the most original and enjoyable parties for its brothers and friends. 1963 marked a peak of achievement for this goal. The biggest event was the Quint-Fraternity Ball in which NEZ brothers extended the hands of fraternal friendship to four sister fraternities at Northeastern University for the 26th successive year. A pin-mate of an NEZ brother was selected as Queen of this formal dance.

Undoubtedly, this will remain forever in our memories as will the summer "Beach Whirl", Homecoming, and the Annual Parents' Weekend.

Keeping in line with traditional academic goals, we have much to be proud of, as we ranked third among NU fraternities.

And so that was 1963 ... a year of laughter and pleasure, fractured legs and ankles, broken hearts and henpecked husbands, and a continuation of the tradition of our brotherhood — NEZ.

Home sweet home...

TAU EPSILON PHI

The past year of Tau Epsilon Phi Fraternity can best be summarized in one word — expansion.

Kappa Zeta Phi Chapter was expanded in all of its field of endeavours. With the addition of thirty new pledges, membership has reached an all time high of sixty-four.

TEP has four members, including the President, Paul Cowan, on the Student Council, four members on the Class Board, and many officers in the Student Activities organization.

TEP also has five honor students. Among KZP school highlights were our co-sponsorship of the victorious candidate in the Mayor of Huntington Ave. Contest and our airplane flight at the Homecoming Game.

TEP has constantly tried to provide large vocal support for Northeastern athletic events in addition to having members on the undefeated Husky squad.

We have also participated in Inter-Fraternity Council activities and are currently leading on the softball, bowling, and golf competition.

Our community service aid was mirrored in the certificates of merit we received from the Muscular Dystrophy and Fairfield State Hospital organizations.

The Coed Force Sororities

Since 1957 when Northeastern's first sorority, Chi Pi Epsilon, was forming, these coed organizations have played an important role on campus as well as off. Three sororities have been formed since Chi Pi: Delta Pi Alpha, Theta Sigma Tau and Kappa Theta Xi. All, at one time or another, have pitched in with the male Greeks in such activities such as the Mayoralty campaign each year, floatbuilding, and partying.

Although no sorority has yet entered a candidate in Mayoralty campaigns, they have participated independently in Greek Sings, Homecoming festivities and have had their share of "hen" parties.

To the dismay of the gentlemen Greeks, these Northeastern Venuses have on "a few" occasions, shall we say, defeated them.

The four sororities also, have organized an Intersorority Council to better strengthen the system as a whole and aid each individually.

To the men ... beware!

"Blue Skies" was the theme of the Chi Pi Epsilon Sorority this year. Our sisters were continually busy with Modern Dance shows, Silver Masque productions, football cheers, and Husky Key functions.

Our members were also active entertaining at the annual Mother and Daughter Tea, the social hour after the Greek Sing, and the traditional banquet for sisters and alumni.

A cold cut supper, a cook-out which even raindrops couldn't dampen, and a picnic provided rapport and relaxation.

The Duxbury Beach Party on that sweltering July afternoon had a program of sports which furnished tidbits for our new paper, the "Corinthian Column".

In sharing the fun of a softball game and a Halloween Party with other sororities, and working jointly Freshman Night to introduce girls to Northeastern sororities, we strengthened our understanding of other female groups on campus.

The Chapel afforded an impressive setting for the initiation of eleven new sisters and we found singing for the first Chapel service of the fall term inspiring and rewarding.

This year's Homecoming activities emphasized the fellowship, zeal, and co-Operation of Chi Pi sisters. We will always remember the hours spent in making those tiny flowers; but more important is our pride in a sister, the Homecoming Queen, and in our float creation, "Japan".

The Mimi A. Reardon hundred dollar Scholarship dance was held at the Logan International Airport Motel—our Mimi A. Reardon, "Woman of the Year".

Delta Pi Alpha enjoyed two "hep" pledge classes—Pledges risk lives at "Painting of the Rocks Party". Has anyone been on Route 93 lately? Pledge classes followed by hell-weekends, or 3:00 a.m.—have a cigar, girls? Pledge task carried out well, Nina—"Just the facts, Ma'am."

Cheering our undefeated football team was the most! Following the victorious Homecoming Game, Delta Pi Alpha and Phi Gamma Pi collaborated as hosts in the serving of coffee and donuts at their FRATERNITY house on Kent St.

Thank you Phi Alpha Rho brothers for helping in the preparation of that Spaghetti Supper—delicious! Beta Gamma Epsilon batted left-handed, but still beat sisters at softball.

Our charity program was fulfilled with vigor at the Nickerson Home and Chelsea Naval Hospital.

Best wishes and happiness to our sisters who have become married, pinned, and engaged.

Rho Pi Phi International Pharmaceutical Fraternity is a professional, international fraternity founded in 1919 and now made up of 8,000 active members in 19 chapters in the U.S.A. and Canada.

One of the main reasons for its foundation was to form a truly non-sectarian fraternity in the area of Pharmacy.

In 1957 Tau Chapter, which is made up of 30 Pharmacy majors, was founded at the New England College of Pharmacy, and became a part of Northeastern University on September 1, 1962. It is now actively engaged in all University functions.

In addition to our professional goals and aspirations, we have our social side hich is culminated by our annual formal dinner dance.

The fraternity awards three scholarships to deserving members of the chapter. Every member has his dues to the American Pharmaceutical Association paid by the chapter.

Fullback Jack Kelly draws a tough assignment from Gerry Varnum.

The football picture for 1962 looked promising. Graduation had claimed seven starters, but Coach Zabilski had nineteen lettermen returning. The experience factor made the interior line the big question mark, with the exception of All-New England Center, Dick McPherson. Seniors loomed large in the picture. At tackle Captain Denis Dugan and Peter Malkowski were the leading candidates. Defensive standout, Bill "Shotgun" Sheldon and Frank Schettino, a versatile two-way player, capably filled the end positions. In the backfield, veteran Gerry Varnum was slated to call signals. Tom Kelly returned to his halfback spot while his brother Jack shifted to fullback.

A pre-season scrimmage with Bowdoin uncovered the Husky break-away potential when Dean Webb tallied twice on classic broken field runs of 35 and 67 yards. Jack Kennedy ripped of 43 yards on a Q. B. sneak to make the final total 18-6.

The Rhode Island game in years past had proved to be a good indication of how Northeastern would do during the season. The Rams were loaded with experience — some of it gained while losing to Northeastern the year before. Max St. Victor boomed the opening kickoff into the end zone and for the rest of the afternoon forced the Rhody attack to start from deep within its own territory. The Husky offense broke loose in the second period when Webb repeated his scrimmage performance. He went 64 yards on a screen pass from Gerry Varnum and 44 on an interception with eleven seconds left in the half. Jack Kelly swept for two to make the score at halftime 14-0. It took only five plays in the second half before Brian Hayes barged in from the one to make the score 20-0. In the fourth quarter Varnum snagged a Rhody aerial and directed a Husky march that was capped by Hoe Heuston's scoring plunge.

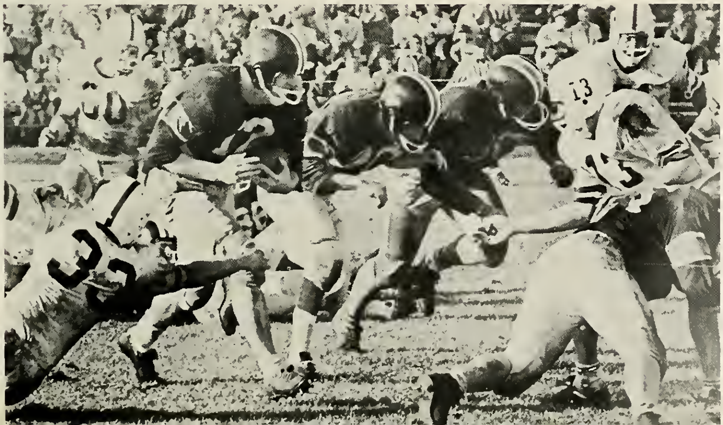
Most Valuable Player Frank Schettino.

"Shotgun" Sheldon (87) and Jimmy Ahearn (65) combine to stuff A. I. C.'s Dick Glogowski; coming up from the rear is Jimmy Lyons while Frank Schettino (86) looks on.



George Hall (12) carries with Gerry Varnum (20), Howie Harding (60) and Denny Dugan leading the blocking on a power play against Tufts.

The 28-0 rout was the worst defeat in the 27-year history of the rivalry. R.I. had 21 yards rushing and moved the ball out of its own territory for just a half-dozen plays all afternoon. The only sour note of the day was Varnum's ankle injury which would prove to be a decisive factor in the next two games with Bridgeport and Bates.

Bridgeport teams had always been tough and with Varnum on crutches and the field soggy from an all-night rain, the Huskies had no illusions about an easy victory.

The Purple Knights registered the first touchdown through the air and converted for a halftime lead of 7-0. In the third period N. U. came out fighting and scored early when Ed Mullin threw a 17-yard touchdown toss to Frank Schettino. The gamble for two extra points failed, giving Bridgeport a slim one-point lead. The remainder of the game was a study in frustrations for the Huskies as they continually threatened, but could not dent the Purple Knights' armor again. Bridgeport was the only team the seniors had played against for three years and did not beat.

The Bates Game was the low point of the season. Dean Webb had joined Varnum on the injured list with an ailing knee and to make matters worse, a torrential downpour, which continued unabated throughout the game, combined with a weary bus ride to further dim the Huskies' hopes. Northeastern had an 8-7 lead in the fourth quarter via a Kennedy to Schettino pass play, but then things went amuck in the mud and the Bobcats got two unearned touchdowns. N. U. led in every department rolling up 290 yards to the Bobcats' 81 and 14 first downs to Bates' four, but the final score was 8-20.

The sun came out literally and figuratively on the next Saturday against A. I. C. After a scoreless first half, the Huskies started to get some of the breaks they had been missing in the last two games when linebacker, Dick McPherson, intercepted a pass on the A. I. C. 25 and brought it back to the sixteen. Varnum found a weak spot over left tackle and, with Denny Dugan blocking and Brian Hayes carrying, Northeastern scored. The Huskies clinched the game in the fourth period when Jack Kelly banged over the goal line for the decisive touchdown. The Aces averted a shutout with a long T.D. pass on the last play of the game, but it was too late. The final score was 14-6. Captain Denis Dugan presented Coach Zabilski with the game ball in recognition of his fiftieth win in fifteen seasons at Northeastern.

Captain Denny Dugan leads the Huskies onto the field.

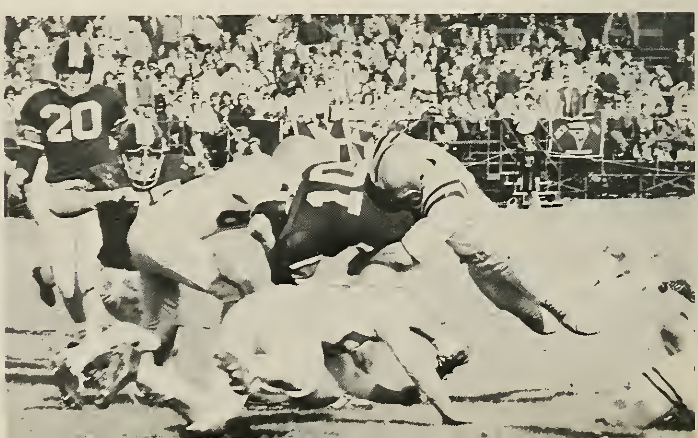
Dean Webb nailed by a pack of A. I. C. tacklers.



The fifth game of the year was played against the Gymnasts of Springfield College, who annually provide Northeastern with a tooth-and-nail struggle. N. U. took an early lead when Dean Webb hauled in a punt and raced 56 yards to score. Brian Hayes added two points with a slash off tackle. The Husky defense, led by tackle Joe Davis, kept Springfield deep in their own territory and forced a bad punt which led to N. U.'s second touchdown. Fullback Jack Clarke scored it on a three-yard plunge. The Gymnasts tallied in the closing seconds of the half to make the score 14-6. The Huskies defensive unit had limited Springfield to 18 yards rushing in the first half.

The Gymnasts added a field goal in the third period to narrow the gap to 14-9. Late in the game with time running out, the Gymnasts passed their way up the field and were threatening to score again, but the Husky defense stopped them on their own 15-yard line with about 40 seconds left to play. Quarterback, Gerry Varnum, then ran out the clock and Northeastern had its third win of the season.

Northeastern next ran up against the undefeated and untied University of New Hampshire. The game shaped up as a battle between two tough defensive teams and the first half ran according to prediction with neither team breaking into the scoring column. In the third quarter the Huskies made a fateful fumble. Wildcat quarterback, Lloyd Wells, skillfully capitalized and put his team ahead 6-0. The Huskies launched a running and passing attack in the fourth quarter, but could not score. New Hampshire went on to an undefeated season and was voted the Best Small College Team in New England.

The Homecoming game against the King's Point Mariners was played, before a capacity crowd, in the rain. The Mariners had 33 returning lettermen and were ranked 11th in the nation defensively, going into the game. Earlier in the year they had beaten Bridgeport.

The first half was played almost entirely at midfield with the two teams unable to move the ball for any large substantial gains. Both clubs looked like herds of abominable snowmen when they went back to their locker rooms at half-time with the score 0-0. In the third period, Northeastern exploded for two quick touchdowns. Quarterback, Gerry Varnum, ignoring the freezing rainstorm, sailed a pass from midfield into the waiting arms of Frank Schettino who then took it all the way for the T.D. to complete the 42-yard play. Four minutes later Varnum hit halfback Tom Kelly with a pass good for 35 yards and a first down on the King's Point 21. Brian Hayes carried 16 yards off tackle and then fullback, George Hall, swept right end for the remaining five yards and the Huskies' second touchdown. Hall finished off the scoring by adding two points with a blast off tackle.

Gerry Varnum throws a strike in 28 to 0 rout of Rhody.

King's Point never penetrated beyond the Northeastern 22 yard line allday and when the final gun went off, N. U. was on top 14-0. It was the first time the Huskies had won a Homecoming Game in years.

The one game players, coaches, and students had been looking forward to since the start of the season was Tufts. The Jumbos from Medford had been rated number one small college team in the East. Tufts pilot Harry Arlanson had never lost two games in a row as a head coach in over twenty-five years of guiding high school and college teams to winning seasons. The game was being built up by local papers as a showdown to decide who would be the small college champion of Boston.

On Saturday morning, November 10, 1962, it was raining—again, but just before game time the sun came out and playing conditions turned out to be excellent.

Northeastern completely dominated the first two periods of the game with their rugged brand of hardnose football and packed all of their scoring into the last four minutes of the first half. Dean Webb with 3:35 showing on the clock, looked like he was going to sweep left end after taking a pitchout from Varnum, when suddenly he cocked his arm, on the run, and threw a 13-yard touchdown pass to right end, Jack Silverio, culminating a 44-yard scoring drive. The Huskies had the ball again with 31 seconds left in the half when Coach Zabilski sent in his secret weapon, Max St. Victor, to kick a spectacular 46-yard field goal which completely stunned the Tufts team and gave N. U. a halftime lead of 9-0.

In the second half the Jumbo's offense began to move, but it wasn't until the fourth quarter that they could score. The Husky defensive line of Frank Schettino, Denny Dugan, Howie Harding, Joe Davis, and "Shotgun" Sheldon teamed up with linebackers Dick McPherson, Jim Aherarn, and Fred Tripp to stop any further attempts by Tufts to go ahead in the last minutes of play. The game ended with Northeastern the winner 9-6. The Huskies wound up with a respectable 5-3 record for the season and had it not been for bad weather and injuries, they might have gone undefeated.—JACK KELLY

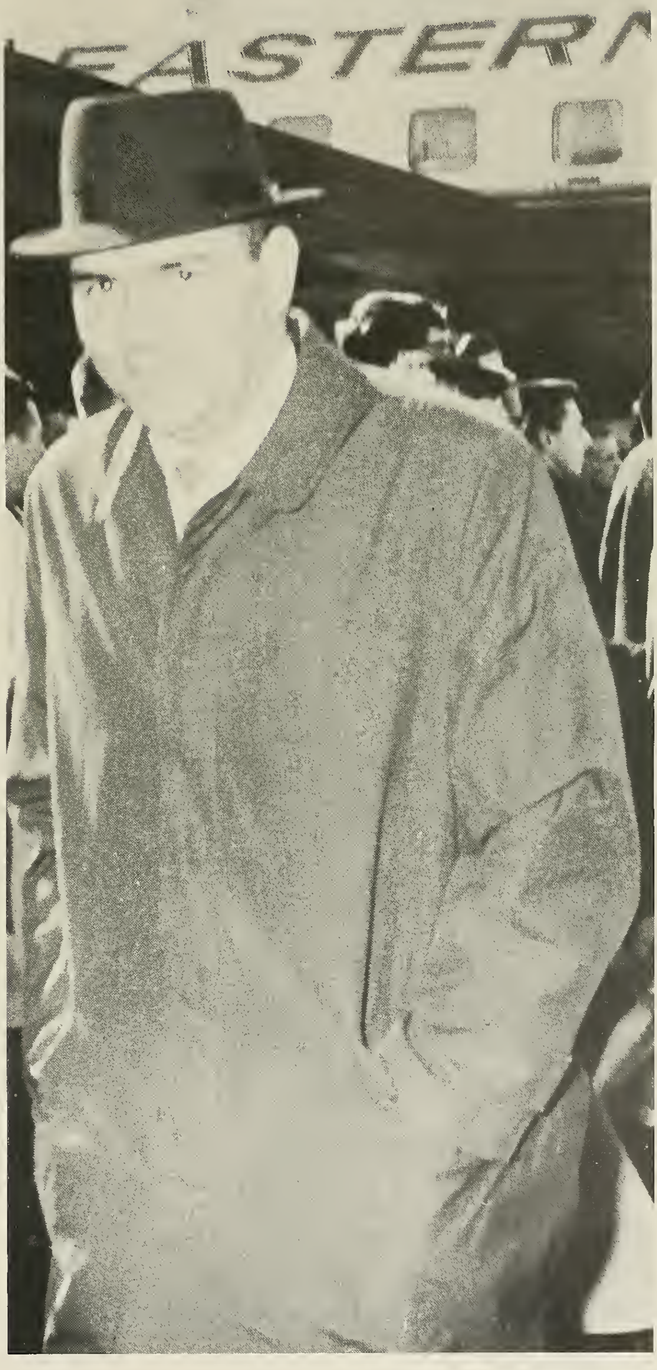
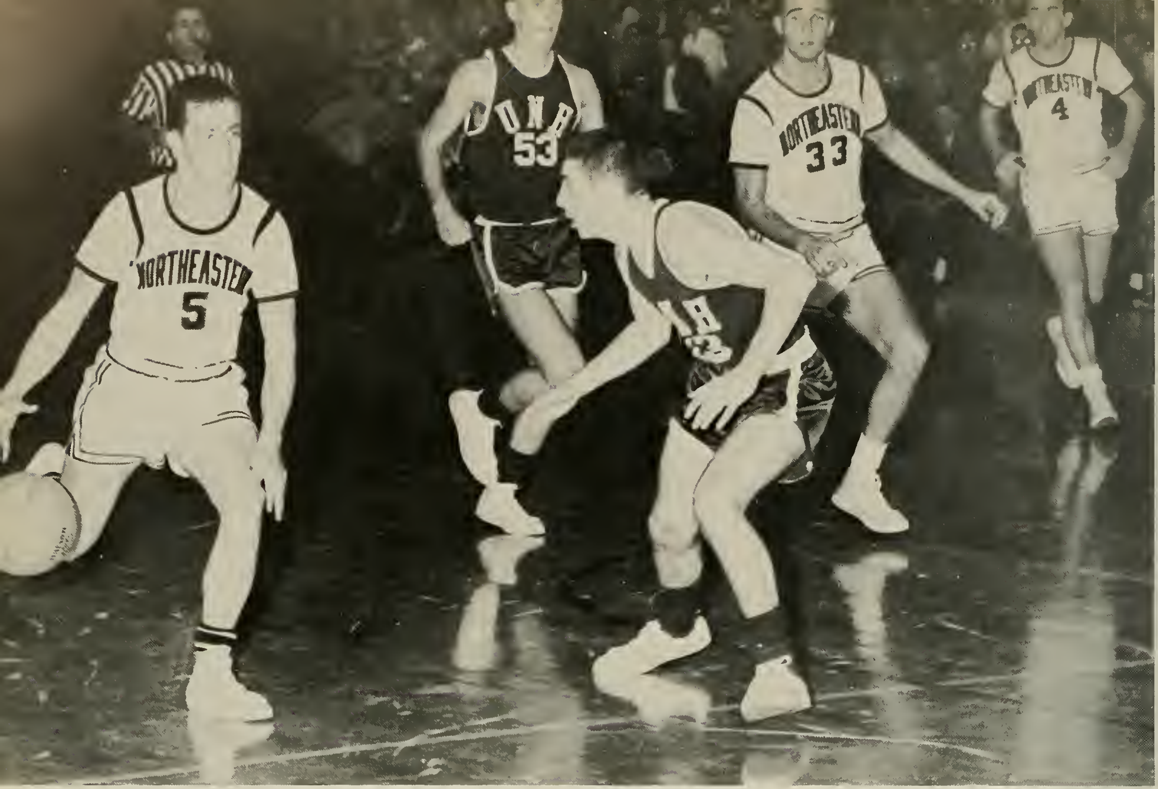
COACH DICK DUKESHIRE





Paul Solberg (5) brings the ball down the court while Fran Ryan (33) and John Malvey (4) get set for the play.

Coach Dick Dukeshire led off with the traditional note of cautious optimism in his preseason prognostications but if the caution sounded a little forced there was good reason. Last year's regional champions returned almost intact with an additional year's experience that was bound to show in the upcoming season.

Paul Solberg and John Malvey formed a well balanced pair of guards. Solberg was a polished ball handler and a masterful court tactician and Malvey's accuracy made him a constant threat from the outside. Under the boards, Captain Bill Tully's hustle was a major factor in the Husky defense and Tom Martin's ability was evident at either end of the court. In the pivot Fran Ryan was the team's best rebounder backed up by his brother Fred.

The team didn't waste any time in showing that they were gunning for another tournament bid. They rolled over Bowdoin, Brandeis, King's Point and New Hampshire by margins of more than 20 points in each game. With Solberg leading the fast break, he and Martin, Malvey and the Ryans were consistently in double figures. At an early season Basketball Writer's luncheon MIT's Jack Barry predicted that the Huskies would be big trouble for some big teams before the season was over.

Rhode Island, their first major collegiate opponent, learned the wisdom of those words but pulled the game out with a last second basket to snap the Husky streak.

The Rhody game proved on a momentary setback as the Huskies rolled off another four straight wins over A. I. C. A. I. C., C. W. Post, MIT, and Middlebury. MIT, Northeastern's first Boston opponent, were up for the game and held the winning margin to ten points, the lowest in nine games but Tommy Martin was not to be stopped that night when he took over in the second half and ended up high man in rebounds and scoring with 13 and 26 respectively.

In their second try against a big college they were still troubled but lost again, this 80 to 77 to Boston University. The next night they toppled Tufts with an almost air-tight zone defense in the second half. Hartford tried ball control tactics, against the team that was beginning to get circled on many New England collegiate schedules, but lost 45 to 28 in a warm-up for highly rated Springfield.

The M-squad did it for the Huskies in this game. Martin covered the Gymnast's high scorer Red Bredice so well that he missed all 18 shots from the floor and Malvey provided the outside scoring punch, totalling 24 points in the 71 to 62 victory.

After beating St. Michael's in a "must" game the team was halfway through the season with a spotless 12 and 0 record against small colleges and a 12 and 2 overall. At that point, right after finals, they hit a mid-season slump and dropped two in a row to major colleges, Brown and Boston College.

The Husky pride was jolted but the ability remained the same as they bounced back with solid wins over Bates, Colby and Clark and prepped for the Terriers in the Beanpot opener.

It was a hot-handed, hard-pressing Husky squad that jumped to an early lead and never lost command in a 64 to 54 win over the M-squad copping 37 points. Revenge was doubly sweet because it enabled them to another shot at B. C. later in the week.

The game was billed a good little guy against a good big guy and generated a lot of suspense as the week wore on. An irresponsible element among the fans stole the Boston College eagle for the occasion. Roberts Center was packed for the game against Garry Ward and Co. only to lose 59 to 53 in overtime.

It was an honourable, although heartbreaking loss, but the team had accomplished what it set out to do. They easily breezed over the last three opponents, U Mass, Coast Guard, and W.P.I. and accepted the invitation to be the host team for the 1963 NCAA Northeast Regional College Division Tournament.

The Cabot Center's seating capacity was bolstered by 400 but the tourney was played to a turn-away crowd both nights. The Huskies drew dark horse Assumption in the opener. The Dukemen's second-half magic broke a half time deadlock with a 12-point spurt and they were never in serious trouble after that. The Greyhounds edged to within three points at 54 to 51 in the final stanza but Martin, Ryan, Malvey, and Tully later the game was 62 to 51 and on ice. The final score was 74 to 60.

Saturday night against Springfield, who eliminated Fairleigh-Dickinson, was a real seat-squirmer until the fourth period when few spectators were in their seats at all.

At eleven all, Malvey, the man on the outside, sprained his ankle and the team went into a tailspin, down to eleven points behind at one time in the second half. They tied it up at 34 points each but had to come on again in the last five seconds on a shot from the corner by Malvey to force the game into overtime at 43 points apiece.

Malvey beats U Mass for a basket.

Evansville overtime, the Maroons' Brak Ed and Captain Bill Tully matched baskets before Springfield decided to hold the ball for one last shot. For two and a half tense minutes the visitors kept the ball juggling just out of the desperate Husky reach. Finally Martin tied up Ek for a jump ball which the Huskies won. In the final seconds the ball went to Malvey again in the corner. This time his shot was in and out and then in again courtesy of Fran Ryan, who had driven in to tap the ball through the netting and convert the Cabot gym into a scene of near hysteria.

Then, of course, came the shouting. Various members of the team were hoisted onto the fans' shoulders, somebody put Mayor Bill Lynch's top hot on Paul Solberg, "the Duke" got a cowboy hat, and the traditional fully attired shower, Captain Tully accepted the trophy and President Knowles summed it all up by saying, "This is a night to remember."

Northeastern's hard-court heroes were not to cross their stars with fortune in the Indiana badlands. They had been flying high ever since the season started but the altitude at Evansville, which passes for Mount Olympus in college division basketball, was pretty rarified and the Huskies just missed by a point, a few seconds, an injured ankle, or by any measure it was a close miss.

Malvey's ailing ankle dropped the odds on the Dukemen even before they drew Wittenberg, the nation's top ranked small college team, in the first round. Tom Martin was the mainstay in the first half with eleven points and it was an even game at the mid-point break. The third period was the most disastrous ten minutes of the season. The Huskies dropped dead and the Tigers went ahead by ten points.

It wasn't a team that died easy though and sparked by Paul Solberg, who all but made the ball vanish at times, they fought back and were down 48 to 40 with three minutes left to play. They held Wittenberg scoreless for the time but could only make up seven points. A tough ending to what commentators called the most exciting game of the tourney.

doesn't keep a records of assists but he is conceded the unofficial record. Number of steals, too, would be something to see in print.

More than imaginary records, the thing that earned Solberg a place in Northeastern basketball history was his attitude. He never conceded anything to the other team until the game was over. If the other team had possession it was only conditional until Paul had a chance at it. Most of Northeastern's offensive plays during his last two years started with Solberg, standing in the back court perspiring, heaving for breath and looking over the opposition like a Mississippi riverboat gambler.

Captain Tully was a hockey player in high school but switched to basketball on coming to Northeastern. A Dean's List student, he was primarily a defensive player on a team that stressed defense. During his last season he was second to Fran Ryan in rebounds.

The most "awarded" player on the squad was Fran Ryan. Among his honors were the NEWS Most Improved Player, Most Valuable Player of the regional playoffs, the UPI All-New England college division team and selection for a tryout on the American team in the Pan-American games.

The United Press International only recognized what everyone at Northeastern knew to be self-evident when it named Coach Dukeshire to the top small college coach in New England.

Statistically, Malvey led scoring with 383 points and a 14.2 average. Three other players, Tom Martin, Fran Ryan and Paul Solberg, had double figure averages. The team outscored their opponents on the average of 66 to 53 and had a hefty .453 percentage from the floor while 23 adversaries managed in the aggregate nineteen fewer attempts and made good on only .382 percent of them.

The statement of Dartmouth's Coach Doggic Julian, who as in the stands when Northeastern won the regional championship, was a reflection of perhaps what was the most significant aspect of this team's accomplishment. He said, "I'd play Northeastern anytime, any place — except in this snake pit." The regionals at Northeastern, the valiant battle at Evansville, and several times during the season, were all stirring a new unity and fervor of spirit among the student body. Should this spirit prove viable in the years to come then this team can be said to have made its mark high in the traditions of Northeastern.

HOCKEY

Dubbing last season "disastrous", hockey coach Jimmy Bell said he was depending on experience gained and sophomores to make a better showing. The experienced could detect a note of desperation in the statement from a man without a senior on his squad.

Along with several other continuing problems, the team opened the season with two pressing needs. The first was obviously to improve on last year's seven and seventeen record and second to fill the still empty skates of Art Chisolm.

In the second category Leo Dupere came as close as he was to coach Bell's heart. Although most observers still conceded to Chisolm in all-around ability, Dupere managed to break the All-American's scoring record with 67 points.

The other objective proved less amenable to a solution. The team upped the wins to nine but the losses remained a discouraging constant at seventeen.

Injuries hurt, as did the co-op system and by mid-season the News sports editor had duly made the case for a University rink. But these were the accepted conditions for the Husky icemen when they started their schedule against the major hockey powers in the country.

The team started well with a ten to seven win off Princeton. The first line of Leo Dupere, Wayne Spence, and Neil McPhee netted seven goals with Dupere credited with the hat trick.

Rough ice wasn't far off however. The Bellmen dropped two by one goal margins to Yale and Boston University. They breezed by Norwich 10-3 but fell to Middlebury 5-8, with sophomore goalie Gus Cappizzo making 60 saves during the effort.

Next came the initial test against the local powers. Harvard, buoyed by the reinstatement of Gene Kinasewich, crushed injured plagued Northeastern 8 to 1 and Boston College was just as tough clobbering the Huskies 13 to 2.

The University of New Hampshire provided a pleasant interlude before the Xmas tourney and an 8 to 4 win with Dupere notching his second hat trick.

In his position at the net, Gus Cappizzo thwarted impending doom with a regularity that heartened his teammates many a bleak night. At one point during the season it was predicted he would be credited with a thousand save season but he fell short despite setting a new school record of 894 saves.

Northeastern didn't upset any expectations when it lost all three games in the Christmas tourney but it jarred a few. In every game, they played their opponents even in ability and in score for the first two periods, including powerful Colorado and Harvard squads, only to fall before suringing rallies. In recognition Leo Dupere and Gus Cappizzo were placed on the first and second tourney all-star teams respectively.

Army extended the Husky losing streak to four games by virtue of a 4 to 2 setback, but they snapped back against Dartmouth with a brilliant comeback victory, 4 to 3, featuring three third period goals by Neil McPhee.

Brown was an Army repeat as the team took the short end of a 2 to 4 game. They put together two solid wins over Bowdoin and Colby before relapsing to the season's trend against Boston College again, 3 to 7 this time.

In the Beanpot Tourney only a "sudden Death" overtime goal by Harvard averted what threatened to be the biggest upset of the year in Eastern College hockey. The Huskies salved their frustration with a 4 to 2 win over Boston University in the consolation game. This time both Dupere and Capizzo made the first All-tourney team.

Sandwiched in between the Beanpot games the Huskies dropped a 5 to 7 game to Rennsselaer that featured a head on clash between the top eastern scoring leaders, RPI's Bob Brinkworth and Leo Dupere. Brinkworth came out on top with 3 goals and one assist to Dupere's 2 goals. Leo maintained the top spot with 55 points, but the next game sidelined him with a knee injury and Brinkworth eventually copped the lead.

Almost from the start it seemed that the story of this team's diligence and hidden brilliance were not to be told in the win and lost columns. Without Dupere and other sidelined players the potential displayed in the Beanpot tourney never materialized.

TRACK

Top scorers Steve Pettersen and Sam Walker scale the high hurdles.

The year 1962-63 was one of records for the Northeastern Track teams. In Indoor track, outdoor track and cross country, the Husky runners smashed a long list of records.

The indoor runners turned in the best team performance with an overall 6-1 mark, missing an undefeated season by the slimmest of margins — one point. The indoor team waltzed through its first six meets without any trouble but met a formidable University of Maine team in the last meet and missed the victory by one point, 57-56 in the last event of the year, the relay race.

Carl Wallin, Northeastern's stellar shot putter, paced the team in record-breaking performances. Wallin established new cage or meet records almost everywhere he performed. His best toss of 58'3" during the Tufts meet placed him third among the nation's foremost shot putters. He further solidified his standing by placing third in the National Intercollegiate Meet in New York City.

Another weightman, Bill Corsetti, smashed the 35-pound weight record with a heave of 58'¾", which ranked him among the top ten collegiate weightmen in the nation. Following Wallin and Corsetti's lead, Steve Petterson lowered the record for the low hurdles in both the UConn and Bates meets.

The tracksters continued to rewrite the record books outdoors, although the team finished with a disappointing 2-3 record. In the first meet of the spring, the Huskies downed M.I.T. 75-59 and later trounced Tufts, 91-44, to highlight the season.

Corsetti switched from the 35-pound weight to the hammer throw but didn't switch his winning ways. He broke a record every time he threw the hammer and reached a personal high of 179'1" during the Tufts meet. Along with Corsetti's outstanding throw, Randy Miller set a meet record in the javelin, Russell Burke was a triple winner in the high jump, high hurdles and broad jump, and Carl Wallin won both the shot put and discus.

In the New England Championships, Wallin won the shot put crown and Corsetti placed fourth in the hammer. Wallin also placed third in the IC4A's at New York.

Frank Derry clears the top in the pole vault.

Ed Mcglaston scores again in the fifty yard dash.

Three Huskies were selected on the Greater Boston All-Star team. Steve Pettersen in the low hurdles, Sam Walker in the high jump and Wallin in the shot put were the players honored.

After getting off to a slow start, the cross country team finished the season by putting down the last six teams it faced. The squad lost its first meet to New Hampshire and then dropped a triangular meet to University of Maine and University of Massachusetts.

The tide turned for the harriers in the third meet, when they edged University of Rhode Island by one point, 27-28. Thereafter, the team won every meet and improved each time.

Worcester Tech was the next victim and the team reached the high point of the season by upsetting a heavily-favored Boston College team, 25-31 in their next outing. The season closed on a high note when the Huskies won a quadrangular meet over Bates, M.I.T. and Tufts.

The three track captains, Kevin Uniacke in Cross Country, Ed Flowers in indoor track and Phil Tupper in outdoor track, all enjoyed their best seasons and were lauded for their leadership. Also honored during the year were the three Most Improved Players selected by the NEWS sports staff. Wally Fraser won the award for cross country, Steve Pettersen won it indoors and Bill Corsetti took the honor outdoors.

Coach John 'Tinker' Connelly relaxes on a sunny afternoon.

BASEBALL

A determined effort to capture the Greater Boston League title and upset victories over strong Harvard and Boston College teams highlighted one of the most successful and exciting Northeastern baseball seasons in the history of the University.

Led by the superb pitching of Dick McPherson and the consistent hitting of Neil PcPhee, Jim Keating, and Paul Lombardi, Coach "Tinker" Connelly's 1963 varsity finished the season with 12 wins and 6 losses and a 6 and 3 GBL record, which put them in the middle of the league's three-way struggle for first place right up to the last week of the season.

Regarded as just another team in April, the Huskies started off in the right manner by defeating Rhode Island 3 to 0 and slaughtering MIT 13 to 3. However, it was the 2 to 0 victory over Tufts that gave the GBL an idea of what was to come. Dick McPherson allowed only two hits and struck out nine as he blanked the Jumbos for his second straight shutout.

Boston University brought the Huskies back to reality when they downed Northeastern 6 to 2 despite Neil McPhee's second home run of the young season. But the varsity stubbornly refused to mend their ways. The next day, they jolted Harvard, rated as the powerhouse of the league, 9 to 1. McPherson extended his record of innings pitched without allowing an earned run to 27 in gaining his third victory of the year. Dick didn't limit his feats to hurling either. Behind 1 to 0 in the fifth inning, Mac belted a 400-foot home run, sparking the Huskies to a six-run inning. The next frame they added three more tallies ending the scoring.

The varsity continued their heavy hitting against Brandeis, bombing the Judges 10 to 3, but suddenly went into a slump against two non-league opponents. New Hampshire defeated the Huskies 6 to 2 and A. I. C. won a seat-squirmer 2 to 1.

Now, Northeastern was expected to bow down to the high-flying Eagles. However, singles by Paul Lombardi, captain Jack Pierce and Jim Keating and a double by McPhee in the three-run first inning at Chestnut Hill showed the Huskies were too busy, being on their way to a 6 to 1 victory and first place in the GBL. The only damage that Boston College did that day was in ending McPherson's scoreless streak at 30 when they scored their lone run in the fourth inning.

The varsity went on to a successful weekend in Maine, outlasting Colby 4 to 3 and beating Bates 8 to 6. They came back to Medford where Tufts revenged their earlier defeat with a 4 to 0 shutout, the only time in the season Coach Connelly's crew was held scoreless.

But, the Huskies bounced right back again with a 6 to 1 victory over Clark University and a 2 to 0 decision over Bowdoin. Providence swamped the varsity 16 to 2 and again the Huskies had to regain their hitting ways against Boston College in their fight for the GBL title.

And again, Northeastern challenged the Eagles. Jim Keating's second-inning grand-slam home run gave the varsity a 4 to 1 lead, but a Boston College three-run homer two innings later tied the score. For the next three innings the game became a pitchers' duel, then, suddenly, the hitters took over again. The Eagles scored four runs in the seventh to take the lead. Although the Huskies had rallies in each of the last three innings, the final score was 11 to 8 in favor of Boston College.

Although out of the pennant race, the varsity finished the season with the same class that they had shown throughout the year. Don Darracq paced the Huskies to a 12 to 6 victory over Boston University with a bases-loaded double and a two-run triple, giving Northeastern at least one victory over every other team in the league. McPherson and McPhee combined to lead the varsity to a 3 to 2 squeaker over Springfield as Dick struck out twelve batters and Neil singled in the winning run in the last half of the ninth inning. An appropriate ending to an exciting season. — DON LIPSITZ

Col. Donald L. Adams

PMS

Col. John D. Evens

This year's graduating class has seen three ROTC Commandants in the past four years, come and leave the University during its stay here.

Present PMS is Col. Donald L. Adams, of Atlanta, Georgia, who has held the post for two years now.

Adams is probably more familiar with the possible problems facing the cadets here, for he too is a ROTC graduate from a co-op college, Georgia Institute of Technology.

Called to active duty in 1940, he was appointed to the regular army six years later.

In 1950 he returned to Georgia Tech as an ROTC instructor, in 1953 he was assigned signal officer in Puson, Korea and a year later as Deputy Signal Officer of the Third Army.

Col. John D. Evens, who preceded Col. Adams is the holder of the Army's Commendation Medal, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Presidential Unit with three clusters, plus several other awards.

Col. Arthur E. Cotter, the recipient of 16 decorations has also completed more than 20 years in the service. Both Col. Evens and Cotter are now retired.

RIFLES AGAIN AIRBORNE as the team moves through a right shoulder throw maneuver...

THE FINAL PRESENT closes the routine and another title and trophy belong to the Northeastern unit.

The Pershing Rifles, Company A-12, the 1962-1963 unofficial Eastern United States Champions, continued its high quality this year under the leadership of Cadet Lt. Col. John Kalen and Cadet Brigadier General Michael Zerofsky.

The team which pays for all its trips by dipping into its own pockets. was invited to St. Peter's College Drill Meet in New Jersey, the Illinois Invitational Meet, largest in the West, and sponsored the first annual Bean Pot Drill Meet at Commonwealth Armory with 15 of the East's leading teams represented.

The routines, which have won wide acclaim for the unit are devised by the members with final responsibility resting with the drill officers, Edward M. Jewett and Robert F. Gaudet.

Sporting new uniforms, modeled after the West Point cadet outfit, this year's P/R drill unit again maintained the tradition of fine performances, leadership and a name that is synonymous with excellence.

SPORTING A NEW LOOK this year, the Northeastern P/R unit is clad in West Point grays and white pants. Not only does the unit make it a point to look well drilling, but attire also receives special attention.

12th Regiment

The 12th Pershing Rifles Regiment Headquarters has been located at Northeastern now for the past two years and is presently under the leadership of Cadets John F. McGivney and Joseph Tahmoush.

The 12th represents 11 companies located throughout New England and is comprised of more than 350 cadets.

Over the past year the 12th has sponsored the National Convention at the Statler Hotel, Boston, at which cadets from as far as Nebraska, University of Maryland and Oklahoma State attended.

Plans for a weekend maneuver at Fort Devens for all 11 companies in addition to the third annual Mid-Winter Convention were all handled by the 12th Regiment with Northeastern cadets in charge.

Scabbard and Blade

Northeastern's Company H-11 of the National Society of Scabbard and Blade undertook probably its most active schedule in many years, sponsoring everything from parties to the annual Military Ball.

Under the leadership of William P. Karavatos and John Allen, the Blade broadened and expanded its activities to make it one of the most active groups on campus.

The Blade Sabre team, under the command of Roger Ballou was reactivated, taking part in several parades and exhibitions, while the rifle team participated in more meets than ever before.

The most memorable event of the year was the National Convention this year in Philadelphia. While attending the affair Karavatos and Allen, Northeastern's representatives, outbid New York and Cincinnati to win the next convention for which Northeastern will be the host in 1965.

SCABBARD AND BLADE cadets go through the bayonet drill while on maneuver at Fort Devens. The blade periodically attends such weekends to work on problems and prepare its members for active duty.

Counter-Guerrilla Group

Just completing its second year at the University, the Counter-Guerrilla Group has maintained its aim to better prepare cadets for the service and summer camp.

Now open to outstanding sophomores, in addition to upperclass cadets, the entire group has made several trips to Fort Devens taking part in exercises there with a special forces reserve unit.

Specially invited by Devens, the Group took part in the annual Armed Forces Day celebration. Led by Cadet Lt. Col. John Allen in Div. A and Cadet Lt. Col. Richard Beaumont in Div. B, the CGG under the overall supervision of Captain Tilford Creel has remained one of the nation's outstanding groups.

Included in the Group's training is repelling off 40-foot walls, hand-to-hand combat, river crossing and various other life-saving tactics that will be needed when the members go on active service duty.

GETTING PRACTICE—CGG cadets cross a rope bridge while at a weekend training maneuver at Fort Devens. Looking up at the bridge, it's not high and seems easy; looking down that's another story.

"DON'T LOOK DOWN" is the word as a CGG starts to repel down the 40-foot wall at Fort Devens. Once you're out there it's easy, but that first step.

OPEN FIRE—Night problems are common to CGG members. Here two aggressors cut loose on the rest of the column as it passed. No one knows who won for each division group won—according to them.

COUNTER-GUERRILLA MEMBERS go hand-over-hand over the ice-and-snow-covered bars on a weekend at Fort Devens. At the end of this obstacle, several more waited the hardy CGG troops.

N.U. ALUMNI LOUNGE

Congratulations to the Class of 1964 from the Northeastern University Alumni Association

The officers and members of the Northeastern University Alumni Association extend heartiest congratulations to the members of the Class of 1964. You are cordially invited to visit association headquarters in Richards Hall (Room 225) and the newly furnished Alumni Lounge which is available to you and your family whenever you are in the vicinity. We also urge your co-operation in maintaining an official address with the Alumni Records Office so that you may receive all of your mail promptly. This includes the official quarterly publication of the Alumni Association, The Northeastern University Alumnus, which you received free of charge during your senior year. You will continue to receive it on the same basis.

More important, however, is the fact that your class officers will be looking to the Alumni Records Office for current information for the various communications which will be sent to you as members of the Class of 1964. Among them will be an invitation to attend the annual Homecoming Day celebration and, more particularly, your first class reunion. Although your first formal reunion will not be held until 1969, we hope that you will attend Homecoming and the meetings of at least one of the more than 50 regional alumni clubs located throughout the nation.

Many of you will be entering the armed forces following graduation, and we invite you upon completion of your service commitment to take advantage of the Alumni Placement Service, under the direction of Professor Thomas J. McEneaney '52.

If the Alumni Relations Office can be of service to you in the years ahead, please feel free to call on us. The Director of Alumni Relations is Rudolf O. Oberg '26, who is the liaison officer between the alumni and the University. He works closely with the various class officers, the regional clubs throughout the country, and such special interest groups as the Varsity Club and the Alumnae Association.

On behalf of your fellow alumni, we again extend to you our heartiest congratulations and best wishes for success in the years ahead.
